HEAR VILLA ESCAPES TRAP

Bandit Is Said to Have Gained His New Mountain Lair; More Americans Slain on the Border

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, March 25.—Pancho Villa, the bandit leader sought by 12,000 American and Mexican troops in the greatest man-hunt on record, is reported to have escaped the trap set by his pursuers and fled into the Sierra Madre Mountains at the southern end of the Rio de Santa Maria valley.

With a chosen band of his "coloradoes"—the "golden ones" of his bodyguard—he is said to have run the gauntlet of the rapidly converging American and Carranzista troops. To make his escape the bandit leader was reported today to have abandoned to their fate at least 200 of his followers caught at El Oso, to the east of Namiquipa.

In an attempt to intercept Villa before he can reach the wooded and canyon-riven heights northwest of Guerrero, General Pershing has sent a strong body of cavalry toward Temosachio, on the Mexican North-

War Debate in Reichstag Stirs Up Stormy Scene

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, March 25.—Friday's session of the German Reichstag was one of the stormiest ever held, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Politiken. The uproar finally resulted in the session being closed by the president, he asserts.

Herr Haase, a Socialist member, precipitated the clash with the declaration that "Germany will never win the war, nor will any other belligerent."

He then shouted that the German Socialists hated war and wished for peace. In the tumult that followed several members almost came to blows.

ANOTHER FIRE IN MEDFORD SCHOOL

Defective wiring caused a blaze in the flooring of the Medford high school, near the principal's office. There were a few officials in the schoolhouse when the blaze was discovered, and they notified the fire department. The loss was estimated by the police at $500. Last Thursday night fire was discovered in the Lincoln school, causing damage of several thousands of dollars.

ARREST 7 WOMEN IN VICE CRUSADE

Under the new law, sponsored by the Watch and Ward Society, which makes improper conduct in hotel cafes and restaurants punishable by a fine or imprisonment, the police of the Hanover street and the Joy street stations early today arrested seven women for violation of the law. Five of the arrests were made in the North End. The other two were made by the Joy street station officers.

FIND MAN'S BODY HANGING TO TREE

Milford, Ct., March 25.—The body of a well-dressed young man, about twenty-three years old, was found hanging to the limb of a tree, by shreds of his shirt, in the woods between Pond Point and Wodmont this morning, apparently a suicide.

CHAMPION FAVORITE IN BOUT

Rules of Contest Yet Undecided; They May Make the Difference Between Slug-Fest and Fizzle

By FRANK G. MENKE,
Sporting Editor International News Service.

New York, March 25.—Jess Willard and Frank Moran impatiently await the bang of the gong that will send them into their ten-round battle tonight in Madison Square Garden before a crowd of more than 12,000.

Before the bell tolls midnight a new chapter will be written in the history of the pugilist that may tell how a new champion was made, or how the present one clearly established his right to be called the king of ring warriors.

Or it may be a chapter that tells of a fiasco; that recounts how two men staged a burlesque on a padded mitt contest and collected for their efforts the biggest purses ever doled out for a ten-round exhibition.

Who can tell? Both men are trained to the minute. Neither can alibi a defeat with lack of condition. Approximately four weeks of training for both have hardened their bodies until they seem able to resist the impact of shrapnel. Yet each man confidently predicts that he will score a knockout victory over the other.

The rival battlers act like bulldogs straining at the leash. It seems each can hardly wait until the time comes for him to leap at the other. Each

ADMITS HE GAVE PECK POISON

Dr. Waite Confesses He Bought Arsenic, but Says His Rich Father-in-Law Planned Suicide

New York, March 25.—Dr. Arthur W. Waite is expected to be indicted early next week for the murder of his millionaire father-in-law, John E. Peck of Grand Rapids, Mich.

"I bought the arsenic that killed Mr. Peck," Waite confessed again today, and added: "and gave it to him." He gave as his excuse that his father-in-law was so distraught by the sudden death of Mrs. Peck, six weeks before his own death, that he wished to commit suicide and enlisted Waite's assistance.

The youthful dentist who, it is claimed, was ready to remove every obstacle between himself and his father-in-law's wealth at whatever risk, fully realizes his position.

"I expect to go to the chair," he said. "I'm sorry I didn't die from

U. S. WOMEN ON TORPEDOED SHIP

Three allied ships have been torpedoed, two of them with Americans aboard, and sixteen Americans are missing and probably lost, according to official information that came to Washington today.

Of the missing Americans, one is a Boston man and another's home is in Lawrence.

The ships are:

The channel steamer Sussex, with many Americans aboard, "torpedoed without warning," according to French dispatches, off Dieppe, and which made port at Boulogne today in a badly damaged condition. One American woman aboard was badly hurt, and there were twelve other Americans missing. A panic ensued and a loss of fifty lives is reported.

SURVIVORS ARE LANDED.

The Dominion liner Englishman, with about forty Americans, four of whom are missing. She was torpedoed and sunk somewhere off the English coast, and survivors have been landed at an English port.

The British ship Salybia, with forty-two crew and seven passengers aboard, torpedoed off the English coast. All saved.

The case of the Englishman, because it rests upon an official dispatch from an American consul, appears serious, since it represents an absolute disregard on the part of the submarine commander of the demands of President Wilson, and thus threatens the gravest complications.

American Consul Armstrong, at Bristol, Eng., sent the following official telegram to the State Department:

EIGHTEEN ARE MISSING ON ONE BOAT.

"Dominion line steamer Englishman torpedoed: time and place unknown here.' Survivors brought into northern British port. Thirty-three so far. Believed saved number sixty, more reported as possibly rescued, leaving a shortage of eighteen.

"The following were among the Americans on board:

"Peter McDonald, horse foreman, No. 58 Cherry street, Boston.

"George McDonald, trimmer, No. 37 Common street, Lawrence, Mass.

"P. Buckley and M. A. Burke, horsemen, addresses unknown here.

"These names are not included in list of thirty-three so far rescued.

"Englishman was bound for Portland, Me.; left Avonmouth 21st instant. Transported horses to St. Nazaire, France, for Northwestern Trading Company, New York. Was not on government business. No further particulars at present available Bristol.

Latest War Bulletins

London, March 25.—The German commerce raider Greif and the British armed merchant ship Alcantara have been sunk in the North Sea in a naval battle, it was announced today by the Admiralty. The British losses were five officers and sixty-five men. The engagement took place on February 29. The German raider had been disguised as a Norwegian merchantman. After the fight five German officers and 115 men were picked up and made prisoners.

The Alcantara is listed as a British steamer, hailing from Belfast. She is of 15,831 tons, was completed in 1914, and was owned by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company. No such vessel as the Greif is listed, but there was in the German navy before the war an unprotected cruiser, the Geier, built in 1894, carrying eight 4.1-inch guns and two torpedo tubes and capable of a speed of seventeen knots.

Berlin, March 25.—Verdun has been set on fire by the German artillery, it was announced today by the War Office. Many shells have been thrown into Verdun by the big guns of the Germans to prevent transportation of troops and ammunition to the firing line.

SEEK CAUSE OF DOWNTOWN FIRE

A fire of unknown origin broke out on the top floor of the five-story brick building at the corner of Washington and Fern streets early today, causing damage estimated by the police at $1,000. The top floor was occupied by T. F. Freeman & Co., grocers, as a storehouse. On the floor below the Central Glass Company and Eastern Furniture Manufacturing Company suffered from smoke and water. The police are investigating.

THREE ARRESTED IN STREET FIGHT

In a free-for-all fight in Adams square one man was thrown through a plate glass window of a Brattle street store. Patrolmen Shaw, Rowe and Welsh of the Court square station arrested three of the five belligerents. They were: Jesse Walcott, twenty-seven, Dwight street; Charles E. Hamilton, twenty-four, Shawmut avenue, and James A. Ferretti, twenty-two, Chestnut place. The other two escaped.

MAYOR URGES END OF QUINCY STRIKE

Mayor G. B. Bates of Quincy has issued a statement in connection with the granite strike, involving 2,000 men, in which he states that the granite manufacturers and men should get together and end the strike in the interests of Quincy.

Barre, Vt., Mayor Bates says, is advertising in nationally circulated magazines and newspapers that it is the granite centre of the world, taking advantage of the labor trouble in Quincy. Mayor Bates takes exceptions to the claims of Barre, and says that Quincy is and has always been the granite centre of the world. He urges immediate action on the part of both parties to end the trouble. A meeting of the granite manufacturers has been called for Monday night.

Women in Panic Leap to Death in Sea as British Liner Is Blown Up

SEVERAL AMERICANS AMONG THE MISSING

This and other dispatches dealing with the Englishman make it probable that she was torpedoed at a point well out to sea, since she was apparently three days out of Avonmouth at the time. Avonmouth is on the Bristol Channel.

It is believed there were about forty to forty-five American hostlers and other employes on the boat. The Englishman was a vessel of 5,257 tons. She sailed from Portland February 17.

In the case of the Sussex, which, according to a message to the French Ministry of Marine, was torpedoed without warning off Dieppe, an almost equal number of Americans are believed to have been in peril.

Miss Baldwin, daughter of a prominent American resident of Paris, is reported in dispatches to have been badly injured, and passengers landed at Dover said that several lost their lives.

AMERICANS ABOARD.

Among the Americans named in dispatches as having been aboard were the following:

Tingle Culbertson of Sewickley, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dorothy Hilton of New York.

Miss Edna Hilton of New York.

Mrs. Gertrude Warren of St. Louis.

Edward Huxley, president of the United States Rubber Export Company.

Francis E. Drake, European manager of the company.

Miss Alice Ruiz, a Colorado girl.

Wilder G. Penfield.

The Sussex sailed from Folkestone at 1:20 Friday afternoon. She was near Dieppe when she was attacked, and upon her calls for help, a number of vessels put out to her assistance.

Some of the survivors put the list of missing at considerably more than fifty. The dead include a number of women and children. Among the survivors arriving in England were a number of Americans. They said that there had been between twenty and thirty Americans on the ship when it was attacked.

Twelve Americans were unaccounted for this afternoon.

Mrs. Dorothy Hilton of New York, who arrived in England with the first bath of survivors, gave the first details of the disaster.

"We were about an hour and a half out of Folkstone when there was a terribel explosion which jarred the ship and threw up a mighty wave of water," said Mrs. Hilton. "Many of the passengers were wounded. Panic broke out on board among the passengers, the most of whom were women and children."

LAND SIXTY SURVIVORS.

More than sixty uninjured survivors were landed at Dover, England, by a torpedo boat destroyer. The explosion blew out a large section of the forepart of the ship, including the sleeping quarters of the crew.

Twelve seamen were killed outright. An overcrowded lifeboat filled with women and children capsized. Many passengers, wild with terror, leaped overboard without any life belts and were drowned.

The explosion, which was extremely violent, destroyed the wireless apparatus of the ship, but the crew rigged up a temporary outfit and "S O S" calls were sent out.

A French trawler which was nearby picked up some of the survivors, but space on the ship was limited and only a few could be cared for. The London, Brighton & South Coast Railway, owners of the liner, said there were twenty-five American among the 386 passengers on board.

The body of a Belgian passenger named Plankhert was taken ashore at Dover and is now in the mortuary there.

Among the Americans saved were four members of an American field ambulance corps in France. They were G. H. Crocker and C. T. Crocker of Fitchburg, Mass.; W. G. Penfield of Wisconsin and Daniel Sargent of Harvard. The Crockers were injured.

The Brighton Railroad, which operates the steamer, received reports indicating all on board were saved. The ship belongs to the French state railroads, and before the war was the night ferryboat between New Haven and Dieppe.

300 PASSENGERS ABOARD.

She flies the French flag and is commanded by Captain Mouffet. It is believed she had about 300 passengers aboard when she was torpedoed.

The other ship torpedoed was the Salybia, of 2,131 tons, plying between Barbadoes and Cardiff.

Dispatches from Washington today say the State Department has already addressed inquiries to agents abroad, to determine the exact facts in the case of each vessel.

The attitude of the department was outlined as being that if these vessels were torpedoed without warning, it was in direct violation of the injunction of President Wilson, and would surely be a cause of friction between this country and Germany.

The entente allies have rejected the administration's proposal for disarmament of merchant ships; and so far as the submarine controversy is concerned, the administration now feels free to deal with the Teutonic allies alone.

The attitude of the State Department is expressed in a word: "That American lives must not be put in jeopardy by submarine attacks."

This stand is apparently violated by both the cases of the Sussex and the Englishman.

MISS FALL BRIDE IN MALDEN TONIGHT

A wedding of much interest to Malden people will take place tonight in the Center Methodist Church, that city, when Miss Emma L. Fall, daughter of Ex-Mayor and Mrs. George Howard Fall of Malden, will become the bride of Albert Schofield of Newtonville. The bride-to-be is a member of the Malden school board, president of the Equal Suffrage League, and a practicing attorney. Mr. Schofield is a Dartmouth graduate and is in the wool business.

The maid of honor will be Miss Dorothea Fall, sister of the bride, and the best man, Parker Schofield, Harvard '16, brother of the groom.

4 FAMILIES FLEE FIRE IN STONEHAM

Members of four Italian families, numbering about a score of men, women and children, occupants of the French Block, a tenement building at the corner of Summer and Summer Hill streets, Stoneham, were saved from possible death by fire through the prompt action of Patrolmen O'Brien and Brooks. The officers broke in the door and aroused the occupants, who were sleeping soundly. The Italians fled in scanty attire. The loss was estimated by firemen at $1,000. The owner is John Doherty.

SENECA SAILS TO GIVE AID TO SHIP

Halifax, N. S., March 25.—The United States coast guard cutter Seneca has sailed to the assistance of the Norwegian full-rigged ship Svaland, which was reported dismasted and drifting south of Sable Island.

FITCHBURG MAYOR TO SERVE ON JURY

Fitchburg, March 25.—Mayor Marcus A. Coolidge has been drawn as a juror for the United States District Court in Boston.

WAR SUMMARY

Maritime affairs figured in war dispatches today in two forms. One indicated fresh submarine complications for Washington diplomacy; the other hinted at a naval battle in the North Sea.

Night dispatches reported that the French steamer Sussex, plying between Folkestone, England, and Dieppe, France, was in distress in the British Channel, off Dieppe, with rescue vessels on the way. The Sussex was said to have been torpedoed. It had 388 passengers aboard, some probably Americans.

Subsequent dispatches today said that the Sussex had limped into Boulogne on the French channel coast. The dispatch, which was from Paris, said that the French Ministry of Marine declared that the Sussex had been torpedoed without warning yesterday and that there were a number of Americans aboard.

The British steamer Englishman, plying between Portland, Me., and Avonmouth, England, has been sunk, according to a Lloyds dispatch, with sixty-eight persons rescued. The Englishman sailed from Avonmouth for Portland on March 22. The British vice-consul at Portland reports that there were forty-six returning horse-tenders aboard, forty-one of whom he believed to be Americans.

The reference to the possibility of a naval battle in the North Sea is due to an Amsterdam cable which reported heavy cannonading heard off Ostend and Westende. Another Amsterdam cable, via London, reported fifteen German warships and one airship passing eastward by the Dutch island Ameland Thursday night. Ameland Island is about ten miles off the upper Netherlands coast and looks toward the North Sea.

The Russian War Office reports that in the Jacobstadt sector of the Riga-Dvinsk front strong German counter-attacks have been repulsed. Berlin claims enormous Russian losses.

The French artillery is hurling a rain of shells upon German positions in the Malancourt and Avocourt woods in desperate effort to protect the French salient from Dead Man Hill to Bethincourt.

PROHIBITION WINS BEST BALLOT SPACE

At the drawings for positions on the Presidential primary ballot, held in Secretary of State Langtry's office, the Prohibitionists, who are enjoying their first year as an official party, won the coveted place, the two columns at the left of the ballot. The Democrats drew the middle columns, and the Republicans the two on the right.

HOUSE GETS CLEAN SODA GLASS BILL

GERMANS GAIN NEAR VERDUN

By International News Service.

London, March 25.—The following telegram received here was forwarded via The Hague by the Berlin correspondent of the International News Service after a number of excisions by the censor had been made in the dispatch:

Great German Headquarters, opposite Verdun is—(Special to the Deutsches Tageszeitung).—The battle in the forest of Malancourt, which was reported Tuesday, began at 8 o'clock in the morning. Till 6 o'clock in the afternoon a German gunfire was directed on the French forest positions, where they held the old line in great strength.

At 6 o'clock the infantry attacked. The fight lasted until 10 o'clock at night, as the French stubbornly defended every metre of ground.

Nevertheless the Germans broke through in three places.

The territory held by the French in this vicinity is now attacked from three sides. They are now in a sack, the opening of which is only five kilometres wide (slightly over three miles).

The number of prisoners is officially reported as 2,500, but this number will be greatly exceeded when the final count is made of men now in hiding.

CZAR CUTS TEUTON LINE

Petrograd, March 25.—The most notable development in the situation on the northern front is the Russian rupture of the German line in the Jacobstadt sector between Riga and Dvinsk.

The Czar's troops are using, according to Berlin, liquid fire and poison gases.

The Russians have wrested from the Germans successive rows of trenches defended by a perfect cobweb of wire entanglements.

The Germans' aggressive attempts in the Dvinsk theatre are probably in the nature of a reply to the Jacobstadt rupture, but so far the Russian artillery has shattered the German concentrations.

South of Dvinsk the situation continues strained. On the entire front between Lakes Drisviaty and Vishnevskoe, the Germans are making determined counter-attacks, one of which resulted in their recovery of a portion of the trenches previously won.

CLEANSES YOUR KIDNEYS, PURIFIES YOUR BLOOD

For centuries all over the world GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has afforded relief in thousands upon thousands of cases of lame back, lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism, gall-stones, gravel and all affections of the kidneys, liver, stomach, bladder and allied organs. It acts quickly. It does the work. It cleanses your kidneys and purifies the blood. It makes a new man, a new woman of you. It frequently wards off attacks of the dread and fatal diseases of the kidneys. It often completely cures the distressing diseases of the organs of the body, allied with the bladder and kidneys. Bloody or cloudy urine, sediment or "brick-dust" indicate an unhealthy condition.

Don't make the fatal mistake of neglecting what may seem to be a "simple little backache." There isn't any such thing. It may be the first warning that your kidneys are not working properly, and throwing off the poisons as they should. If this is the case, go after the cause of that backache and do it quickly, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Do not delay a minute if you are sore across the loins or have difficulty when urinating. Go to your druggist at once and get a box of imported GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are pleasant and easy to take. They dissolve in the stomach and the kidneys soak up the oil like a sponge does water. They thoroughly cleanse and wash out the bladder and kidneys and throw off the inflammation which is the cause of your trouble. Your druggist will cheerfully refund your money if you are not satisfied after a few days' use. Accept only the pure, original GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules.

SOCONY KERO-SCENES

"John!"

"Yes, my love."

"John, the kerosene can is empty."

* * * *

"John! Did you hear me?"

"Yes, light of my life. You said 'The kerosene can is empty.' I am sincerely sorry that the kerosene can is empty."

"Yes, so am I, because you've got to go out and get it filled."

* * * *

"John! John!"

"Yes, my love. Can I get it filled at the grocery on the the corner?"

"No, you can't. I don't know anything about their kerosene? You've got to go down the street to Smith Bros. They carry SOCONY Kerosene."

"But, my love, be reasonable. Isn't all kerosene alike?"

"Yes, it isn't. There is as much difference in kerosene as there is in eggs. Get SOCONY Kerosene—it's the Standard Oil Company of New York's best grade of refined oil"

"Yes, my love. SOCONY, you say?"

"Yes, SOCONY. Look for the SOCONY sign on the store window. Mind you don't come back with anything else. And hurry!"

"Yes, my love."

PLAN TO INDICT WAITE

the dope I took. I'm sick of life. I don't care whether I live or die."

The "woman of mystery" in the case has been found to be Mrs. Margaret Horton, a singer. She declared her belief in Waite's innocence and at the same time explained her presence in Waite's apartment in the Plaza Hotel.

MET AT SCHOOL.

"I became acquanted with Dr. Waite at the Berletz school," said Mrs. Horton, "and afterwards we continued our studies in French and music together at the Plaza. I never knew that Dr. Waite had registered my name as Mrs. Walters. My husband knew of my friendship for Dr. Waite, and also about our studies together, and offered no objection, knowing the innocence of our relations."

Dr. Waite is now in Bellevue Hospital, where every precaution has been taken to guard against his committing suicide. Although his mind is normal, he is still weak from the effects of drugs he took on the day of his arrest.

Mrs. Waite, dispatches from Grand Rapids say, has renounced her husband after refusing to believe the charges against him.

FORETOLD DEATHS.

Supporting the police theory that Waite planned to put out of the way, one by one, every member of the Peck family standing betwen him and the big fortune, dispatches from Grand Rapids continued an interview with a clergyman to whom Waite was said to have prophesied the deaths of Mrs. and Mr. Peck, Percy Peck, the brother of the girl he marrid, and finally his own wife. This statement Waite was charged with having made before the death of Mrs. Peck.

Mrs. Waite, wife of the accused dentist, was finally informed of the charge against her husband. She was at the home of her aunt, Miss Catherine Peck. Grave fears were entertained for her reason as a result of the shocks that commenced with the death of her mother, increasing with the sudden death of her father, and culminating in her "discovery" that her husband had practically confessed to being the agent of these deaths and was charged with plotting her brother's death as well as her own.

This confession made by Waite to the district attorney while he was still maudlin from the effects of the opiates he had taken, fell but one point short of complete admission that John E. Peck died from a lethal dose of arsenic administered with murderous intent by the defendant.

Under the bedside grilling of the district attorney, Waite said:

> I bought the arsenic that killed Mr. Peck and gave it to him. He begged me to give him the poison, saying that he wished to take his life. Mr. Peck was racked with illness and stricken with inconsolable grief over the death of his wife.
> I did not kill Mr. Peck. This I swear. I know that you do not believe me, and that this means the electric chair. Do with me as you will. I don't care whether I live or die. I have no remorse. A man has a right to take his life if he wishes.

Waite's confession came after he had been confronted with facts amassed by detectives working under Judge Swann. He would not talk to Judge Swann until the latter gave him the name of a druggist and a physician through whom Waite secured one and one-half grams of arsenic on March 9, three days before the death of Peck.

OFFER OF $1,000 BRIBE.

When he had concluded a seventy-minute interview with Waite, Judge Swann said he had not made up his mind whether the dentist's statement was a crafty design to formulate an insanity defence or whether the young man hopes to escape the major penalty of his crime.

That his statement to Judge Swann was part of a general scheme he has worked out seemed apparent after a dramatic incident that occurred just after the district attorney left the room. Waite summoned Raymond Schindler, a private detective representing the Peck family, and asked him to give his colored maid, Dora Hillier, a $1,000 bribe to inform Judge Swann that she had heard Peck say to him:

> Arthur, you must get me some poison. I have determined to commit suicide.

Section 2304 of the Penal Law provides a charge of first degree manslaughter with a minimum penalty of twenty years' imprisonment for one who aids or abets another to commit suicide.

The district attorney's office has discovered several places where Waite bought poisons between December 21 and March 9.

Mrs. Peck, it will be recalled, died on January 30 last, under circumstances similar to those of the subsequent death of her husband.

In his confession Waite refused to discuss his adventures with women, his residence at the Plaza Hotel with the beautiful woman known as "Mrs. A. W. Walters," and his financial juggling with the thousands of dollars given him by Miss Catherine E. Peck, wealthy aunt of his wife.

"How do you feel?" asked Judge Swann, as he entered the room where Waite lay.

"Not very well," Waite replied. "Say, how much of that stuff (referring to trinial sulphonal and other opiates) did I take, anyway?"

Before Judge Swann could offer reply Waite cut in quickly:

"Well, I guess I took plenty."

Waite was, it was supposed, unaware that a stenographer was seated out of his sight in one corner of the room.

"Doctor, we have located the drug store where you purchased arsenic on March 9," said the district attorney suddenly. "We have the receipt you signed in the books of the druggist. You purchased one and one-half grams. You bought the arsenic under your own name and the receipt is in your handwriting."

Waite maintained a stoical silence. Between each sentence the district attorney paused for a response, but Waite moved not a muscle.

"Dr. Waite, do you know Dr. Richard W. Muller, No. 10 East Fifty-eighth street?" asked the prosecutor.

The prisoner's eyes opened wide. He stared into space for a full minute. Then very deliberately he replied:

"Yes."

"You went to Dr. Muller and asked him to help you to get some arsenic?"

Again a pause and the same deliberate reply:

"Yes."

WILLING TO TELL STORY.

"You went to Dr. Muller about three days before your father-in-law's death and told him you wanted the arsenic to kill a cat that was annoying you?"

"Yes," responded Waite slowly, "I did."

"Dr. Muller told you he would telephone to his druggist and have the latter sell you the arsenic?"

"Yes," replied Waite. Then he turned suddenly and called to Lynn, the stenographer:

"Oh, I say you may as well come out of that dark corner. I know you are taking notes. I know you've got me. I'll tell the whole story."

Judge Swann sent the stenographer out of the room for a moment and continued the examination:

"Dr. Mueller telephoned to the druggist?"

"He did," replied Waite and mentioned the name of the druggist and the location of the store.

Q.—As a result of the telephone call you went to the drug store? A.—Yes, I think this was March 9.

Q.—In what form did the druggist give you the arsenic? A.—He gave it to me in a paper envelope.

Q.—What did you do then?

Waite looked calmly into the face of the District Attorney. He continued in the same quiet, deliberate tones, declaring that Peck had asked him to get the poison.

Q.—Did any other living soul know of Mr. Peck's suicide plan? A.—Not a living soul. No one but myself. And I am ready to go to the electric chair. My wife knew nothing. I don't want her to know anything.

Waite used the words "electric chair" repeatedly. Over and over again he said he did not care whether he lived or died.

"By the way, what would you do if you were in my place?" asked Waite.

QUESTION WOMAN.

"Well," replied Judge Swann, "I can't imagine myself doing a thing like this. I can't imagine myself committing a crime by helping a man commit suicide. Didn't you know it was a crime?"

"No, I wasn't sure. But I knew death was the best thing for Mr. Peck in his frame of mind," replied Waite.

Detective Ray Schilnder has located the woman who was registered at the Hotel Plaza from February 22 to March 18 with Dr. Arthur W. Waite as "Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Walters." The detective refused, however, to reveal her name or present address.

The information was given to District Attorney Swann, and it was said that he, Schlinder and another man talked at length with the woman in her apartments. She is a tall, strikingly handsome woman, twenty-five years old and a brunette.

"The woman was recently married," said Schlinder. "Her husband was present when she confessed her relations with Dr. Waite. It is not believed she will figure in the case."

DR. ARTHUR WARREN WAITE, the accused dentist and his bride, who was Miss Clara Louise Peck, as she appeared in her bridal gown only eight months ago

"WOMAN OF MYSTERY" IN THE DR. WAITE CASE IS A SINGER

New York, March 25.—In Mrs. Margaret Horton, a young, beautiful contralto singer who aspires some day to become a star of the Metropolitan Opera, has been found the "woman of mystery" in the life of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite. She is the wife of Harry Mack Horton, an electrical engineer, inventor and dealer in war supplies, of No. 56 West Eleventh street.

Mrs. Horton freely admitted she is the woman who was seen daily with Dr. Waite in the Hotel Plaza from February 22 to March 18. She said Dr. Waite had fitted up a "studio" in the hotel so that they might study music and foreign languages there together.

"I believed in Dr. Waite absolutely," Mrs. Horton said. "Even now I cannot believe he is guilty of the crime of which he is accused. It seems utterly unthinkable. He appeared to me so frank, so care free. There was no concealment about our acquaintance. We went to and from the room in the Plaza as openly as if we had been walking on Fifth avenue, for there was not a thing to conceal.

"LOVED MRS. WAITE."

"Dr. Waite often spoke to me about his father-in-law and expressed great affection for him. He said Mr. Peck's health had declined since his wife's death and that he seemed to be suffering a good deal. He always spoke of Mrs. Waite with the greatest love and respect and often expressed the hope that Mr. Horton and I should come to see them.

"On the other hand, I was just as open and free about Dr. Waite. I told Mr. Horton of our studies together in Dr. Waite's studio, and Mr. Horton offered no objection. Many times I urged Dr. Waite to come down to our apartment, but there was always some engagement to prevent his coming."

How much light Mrs. Horton's narrative will shed on the motives of Dr. Waite will be decided by District Attorney Swann today. It is expected he will confer with Horton and Mrs. Horton. Mr. Swann said yesterday that Mrs. Horton might prove an important witness.

Mrs. Horton is a singer, only twenty-two years old, but she has already achieved some distinction. She sang three weeks in the Strand Theatre. R. A. Rolfe, the theatrical manager and producer, said that he regarded Mrs. Horton as "a wonderful discovery."

Mrs. Horton is short, decidedly plump, but remarkably graceful. Her eyes are dark brown, almost black, and unusually large. The whiteness of her skin is strongly accentuated by a wealth of dark brown hair that falls gracefully about her shoulders. The most characteristic thing in her appearance is her habitual expression of innocence and surprise.

"I never knew anything about the sordid side of life until I came to New York," she remarked. "I always believed implicitly in everybody and in what they told me.

"It was to fit myself for the grand opera stage that I decided to take up French, German and Italian at the Berlitz school.

"I went to the Berlitz school about February 8 as a private pupil. After a few lessons Mr. Horton suggested that I would make faster progress if I practiced conversation with another pupil. I spoke to one of my teachers about this.

"The teacher to whom I spoke introduced me to Dr. Waite. Dr. Waite also was anxious to get extra practice in the language. In this way we became acquainted.

ENGAGED ROOM.

"Dr. Waite and I went to restaurants together, to talk French. We danced together in the Hotel Plaza and we took walks together. I soon learned he was an accomplished pianist, and he learned I was a singer.

"He suggested that we engage a room in the Plaza and use it as a studio on the afternoons when we had no other engagements. I readily agreed to the plan. There was nothing wrong about it, and no thought of wrong in connection with it occurred to me.

"I was not with him when he engaged the room and when he registered. I know that he brought two large travelling bags with him, because they were full of books and pictures.

"We were never there at night. There was no bed in the room. It was fitted up just as any artist's studio in a hotel would be."

WAITE WAS SEMI-CONSCIOUS WHEN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

By International News Service.

New York, March 25.—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, accused poisoner of his father-in-law, John E. Peck, today is in Bellevue Hospital.

He was conveyed in an ambulance. The physicians of Bellevue at first thought he was in a stupor.

Dr. Harold E. Bates was in charge of the removal. When he entered the room where Waite was in bed, the dentist asked:

"Who are you?"

"A doctor," was the reply.

"Where are you going to take me?"

"To a hospital."

"Will you be in charge of me?"

"No, I will not," answered the doctor.

"What hospital am I going to?" asked Waite.

"To Bellevue," was the answer.

"Why are you taking me there?" he asked.

It was then that two internes gently placed Waite on a stretcher and wrapped him in blankets. His face was completely covered. When he was put into the ambulance the blanket was removed from his face, which appeared to be very white.

A Turkish towel was wrapped round his neck and covered the lower part of his face. He wore blue pajamas. A curious crowd surrounded the ambulance.

During the ride from Riverside Drive Waite kept asking why the ride took so long. He seemed to be semi-conscious. Every few minutes he would ask where they were taking him. Once, when he was told, he said:

"My God! why do they take me there?"

He then became quiet and did not say anything until he was on a stretcher in the receiving room of the hospital.

Not a relative or friend accompanied Waite to the hospital. His escort consisted of Detectives Cunliffe and Flood of the district attorney's office, and two internes. Directly behind the ambulance followed a black automobile, in which Detective Ray Schindler and two of his men rode. Then followed a fleet of taxicabs with the newspapermen.

Dr. Rufus T. Reid examined the patient. He said Waite was suffering from sulphonal and trional poisoning, and that he was also suffering from other drugs. Waite gave his name as A. Waite, twenty-nine, born in the United States, and a dentist.

He gave the name of his best friend as that of his wife, Clara. When asked her address he said: "No. 435 Riverside Drive, the same as mine."

Fear Mrs. Waite Will Go Insane

By International News Service.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 25.—Dr. Arthur W. Waite predicted to the people of this town the death of John E. Peck, his aged father-in-law.

Moreover, he predicted the death of Mrs. Peck, his mother-in-law. Then, to make more sinister his foresight, he forecast the death of Miss Clara Louise Peck, his wife.

Finally he prophesied the death of Percy Peck, brother of the girl who thought him the most facinating man she had ever seen.

This was told a reporter by the Rev. Dr. A. W. Wishart, the Baptist clergyman who married Dr. Waite and Clara Peck last September.

Mrs. Waite has been told the whole story of her husband's perfidy, of his deceptions, and finally of the charges that are now made against him.

"No matter how hard I try," she moaned, "I can't believe it. I guess it's true. I know you wouldn't lie to me. But I cannot picture him a murderer.

"Men go astray. They become dissatisfied if their wives are not as beautiful as other women they meet. I can believe that. But I cannot picture him a murderer.

"Please do not let them ask me questions. I cannot think. Oh, if they only knew the whole truth. I was swept off my feet by Arthur when he came back to Grand Rapids."

This and no more, the stunned wife of the accused dentist said to Francis S. Mancuso, assistant district attorney of New York county.

The doctors fear Mrs. Waite will go mad. Her unpleasant laugh could be heard quite plainly on the porch of the splendid Peck home.

Father Believes Waite Innocent

By International News Service.

New York, March 25.—Protesting firm faith in the innocence of his son, Warren W. Waite, the accused dentist's father, was refused permission to see him today. He called at Bellevue Hospital in company with another son, Frank A. Waite. District Attorney Swann's orders that none be allowed to see or communicate with Waite were obeyed to the letter.

Mrs. Warren W. Waite, mother of Dr. Waite, is prostrated with grief and confined to her bed in the home of her son in the Bronx.

"We don't believe our boy is guilty," said the mother. "Arthur was always a good boy. If it should turn out that he did this thing I know he was insane at the time. But such a thing could not be."

Mr. Waite's grief over the plight of his son was pathetic. The strain of a hasty departure from Grand Rapids, and the long ride to this city was plainly evident. Mrs. Waite was not allowed to visit the hospital, despite her tearful pleading. Her husband said that she was on the verge of collapse and under the care of a physician.

"All I know of the charges against my son and the incidents leading up to them is what I have read in the papers," Mr. Waite said.

"There must be a terrible mistake. My boy was a good boy, and I can't understand it. While he was abroad (in South Africa) I know he was good because of the frequency and regularity of his letters. He seemed to be happily married and there was no apparent reason for him to do anything wrong."

Mr. Waite would not comment upon what steps would be taken to prepare for a defence for the accused. Neither would he go into details regarding facts of a personal character.

WARRANT ASKED FOR TEACHER

A warrant has been asked for in the municipal court charging Miss Helen M. Connelly, a teacher in the Rice Grammar School in South End, with assaulting Fred Jones, twelve, of No. 1361 Washington street.

Attorney H. B. Ross alleges that Miss Connelly struck Fred Jones and his brother John, nine, who is named in the application for a warrant, with a rattan on their legs. He claims that the skin was broken on Fred, while black and blue marks were left on John.

Judge Burke refused to grant a warrant at once, but said he would give the parties a hearing Tuesday, when Miss Connelly will be given an opportunity to tell her story about the alleged assault. Judge Burke did not believe a warrant should be granted without giving the teacher a chance to be heard.

Mr. Ross' story of the trouble on which he bases the assault complaint follows:

"Fred Jones and his brother John are in Miss Connelly's class in the Rice Grammar School, South End. Lincoln Owen is principal of the school.

"I charge that Fred Jones was assaulted by Miss Connelly. As I understand the matter, he laughed in the schoolroom and was singled out by Miss Connelly to be rattaned. Miss Brady, who is also a teacher in the Rice School, was called into the room to witness the punishment.

"Fred called to his brother John to assist him and the result was that both boys were beaten about the legs by a rattan. Fred was beaten so severely that the skin on his shins was broken, while John's shins were covered with black and blue marks. I have had both boys examined by Dr. Pond of Huntington avenue.

"The Jones family lives at No. 1361 Washington street, South End. The father of the family is ill and the mother is forced to work for a living."

PREDICTS STRIKE AT SALEM JAIL

Inmates of the county jail at Salem will go on a hunger strike unless the quality of the food is improved, according to John J. Mulrenis of Lynn, discharged from jail today.

Mulrenis, who served a fifteen days' sentence for drunkenness, blames the so-called Essex County political ring for conditions at the jail.

"There are [illegible] prisoners at the jail," he said, "and only 138 cells. The prisoners fight to obtain Cell 13, the one I had, because it is one of the few that usually has but one inmate.

"Beef stew is served without beef, the pea soup really consists of a watery substance which is allowed to stand beside a can of peas before being served, the coffee is some weird concoction disguised as coffee, and the bread resembles a sponge.

"I understand the Ipswich Jail, which is also in Essex County, is never filled, and the food is much better."

RECORD PAYROLL AT BURLINGTON

Burlington, Vt., March 25.—This week's payroll of the Winooski branch of the American Woolen Company broke all former records, exceeding $28,000. One weaver, an Armenian, earned $50. This included some overtime. An encouraging feature of the rush orders is that while until recently the work has been largely on war orders, there now seems to be a predominance of domestic orders.

Because of the large increase of business here the woolen company recently purchased the plant of the Stevens Machine Company.

MISS MOORE OF MELROSE TO WED

Miss Ethel Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Moore of Ashmont street, Melrose, and former captain of the Melrose High School girls' basketball team, will be married tonight to Benning L. Wentworth, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lowell F. Wentworth of Melrose, at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Thomas Sims, D. D., of the First Congregational Church will officiate.

MALDEN CITY HALL HAS A "BURGLAR"

The Malden police were greatly agitated when they were notified that someone had broken into the City Hall. A squad of officers found that a window had been forced, but as far as could be learned nothing of value was missing.

While the investigation was going on, Ernst Udell, night watchman, arrived with a hammer and nails, explaining that he had come to fix the window which he had forced when he found that he had left his coat, containing all the keys, inside.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO FIRE MELROSE HOUSE

Gasoline was used in a second attempt within a year to burn the unoccupied Littlefield mansion in Green street, Melrose. The roof and upper portion of the two and a half-story wooden structure were destroyed. The fire was seen for a long distance.

Miss Phyllis Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Rich of Colchester street, Brookline, will be an attendant at the wedding of Miss Louise [illegible] Trevor and J. Cooper Lord in New York on May [illegible]. Miss Rich was selected because of her long friendship with the bride-to-be.

Miss Rich is a debutante of several seasons. She took part in "The Royal Family," given two years ago for the benefit of the Anti-Suffrage Association. She is a striking brunette.

Miss Anne Mason, the sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Williams Mason of No. 11 Regent circle, Brookline, will be given a small dance tonight at the [illegible] by her parents. Miss Mason, who will not be presented formally until next Winter, is now attending a fashionable school for girls. She is a petite brunette and tonight will wear a dance [illegible] gown of orchid tulle. About [illegible] of the younger set will attend the dance.

Boston society in Aiken will be largely represented tonight at the bridge tournament which will be held at the Hoffman cottage, occupied by Miss Mary Ames. A number of dinners will precede the tournament, for which there will be handsome prizes.

Mrs. William H. Whiting of No. [illegible] Beacon street, who has been for the past two weeks on a visit in New York, is expected home tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jourdan Toppan have taken an apartment at No. [illegible] Charles street, where they will live for the coming year. Mr. and Mrs. Toppan have recently returned from an extensive Southern trip.

The last subscription dance of the First Corps Cadets will be held tonight at the Cadet Armory. These dances have been very popular and a large attendance is expected at the farewell one tonight.

The Spring presidents' conference of the State Federation of Women's Clubs was held today in the Hawes Unitarian Church of South Boston. Mrs. Schuyler F. Herron, chairman of the home economic department, and Miss Esther G. Barrows, chairman of the industrial and social conditions department, led the discussions.

O'Hearn Opens Investigation of School Collapse

Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn inspected today the ruins of the south wing of the Boston Industrial School for Boys at Parker, Hallock and Ward streets, which collapsed in the night, less than twenty-four hours after the concrete roof had been completed. He later said:

"This matter is being given careful investigation. The building plans were accepted and approved by the building department after the approval of J. R. Worcester, civil engineer, who is a recognized authority on building construction. The matter should be treated fairly."

Walter H. Haynes of Whiton & Haynes, the general contractors on this job, looked over the wreckage and said:

"The building was of concrete construction. The contract for the concrete work was sub-let. About three weeks ago the work of covering the roof with concrete was begun, and the last coat was put on the roof yesterday morning. The concrete construction fell and then threw the walls out with it."

BABY FALLS INTO HOT BATH AND DIES

Falling backward into a hot bath which her mother was preparing, four-year-old Flora Lavinsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lavinsky of No. 812 Main street, Woburn, was so badly scalded that she died at the Choate Memorial Hospital.

Irish League Meets.

An address on the Irish situation will be delivered by Dr. Henry V. McLaughlin, president of the Boston Central branch. Other prominent members of the league will also speak.

EXPLORER MAY BE LOST

By International News Service.

London, March 25.—Grave fears are felt for the ultimate safety of Lieutenant Sir Ernest Shackleton and eleven members of his Antarctic expedition, as a result of the mishap to the exploration ship Aurora, which has left them marooned in the desolate ice wastes of the South Polar continent.

Dispatches from Melbourne containing the report of J. R. Stenhouse, second in command of the Aurora, state that the whereabouts of the explorer and his companions are unknown, and it will probably be months before it is definitely established whether or not Sir Ernest and the eleven men perished or not.

When the Aurora was blown from her moorings in Ross Sea and frozen up in a floe, six men from the vessel were ashore.

At the time, May 6, 1915, Sir Ernest and his companions were on their way from Weddell Sea to Ross Sea, crossing the South Polar continent on the ice.

If Sir Ernest and his companions succeeded in making the 1,700-mile journey they found the Aurora missing. If they were forced to turn back, they may now be on their way to South America, to the point from which they set out late in 1914.

The rejoicing that followed yesterday's dispatch from Sydney, N. S. W., announcing that Sir Ernest had returned safely, has been turned to the deepest dismay, and considerable resentment is felt over the sending of a false report from Sydney.

ONLY FEW DAYS IN SCENARIO CONTEST

Any Boston or New England clergyman who stumbles in his sermon tomorrow may have this excuse to offer: that he has been putting the finishing touches on the scenario he is to enter in the "Better Baby" Scenario Contest for which Louis Agassiz Archer, the Lynn philanthropist, has offered a cash prize of $[illegible].

The competition is restricted to clergymen, but the latter may be of any denomination or residence.

Another restriction is given in Rule 3, thus:

> The scenarios written for this contest must deal with the underlying facts by a contrast of babies properly raised with babies who lack proper raising.
> For instance, the baby raised by intelligent parents in proper manner can be compared with the baby reared in the absence of those advantages and opportunities, and the care it should have to fit it for its adult years.

Scenarios must be mailed or brought to the AMERICAN office not later than midnight of next Friday, March 31.

MOVE TO RELIEVE FREIGHT DELAYS

The present freight congestion in Boston is largely due to the failure of consignees to unload freight cars within five days of their arrival, according to the findings of President Louis K. Liggett and a special committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The committee intends to secure a list of all Boston firms who have had freight cars waiting to be unloaded in the freight yards for more than five days.

The Interstate Commerce Commission may allow a special embargo on dilatory consignees.

VILLA REPORTED TO HAVE ESCAPED TRAP

western Railway, and southeastward along that road to Tecalocachic. This district is more than 200 miles from Pershing's main base at Columbus, N. M., but in this drive through Mexico the American expedition is understood to have not lost a single man.

While the race between Villa and Pershing's men is making a thrilling chapter in Mexican and American history, border residents' interest was shifted farther north today.

This was due to the fact that the town of Janos, on the route followed by the American expedition and forty miles northwest of Casas Grandes had been set on fire. The incendiaries are believed to be members of a roving band of Villistas. It is rumored that the town was looted and many persons killed there before the marauders set the torch.

Another band of Villistas is believed responsible for the murder of three Americans—two women and a man, near Gibson's ranch on the New Mexico border.

VILLA FORCES NEAR BORDER.

These outrages were taken by the border folk as evidence that strong Villa forces are being concentrated near the border and that while the hunt for the bandit's leader is being prosecuted far to the south another invasion of American territory may be attempted. The anxiety at El Paso despite the fact that American troops are stationed at Fort Bliss is no less keen than at other points. The action of Sheriff Peyton Edwards in asking for Texas militia has increased the fear that the town may be attacked.

The United States authorities are working in full harmony with the city officials as was evidenced by the placing at the disposal of the chief of police of two companies of the Seventh Infantry last night. The night passed without any serious outbreak.

It became known today for the first time that Villa had tried to get to the border and join one of his bands there, but was balked by the well-executed plans of General Pershing.

Villa scoffed at the American cavalry. He believed it too slow to press his own wild horsemen, yet the American troopers rode him off at Casas Grandes and made a hot pursuit of it southward. Villa was surprised, but his confidence was not shaken.

PERSHING TOO QUICK.

From the neighborhood of Namiquipa he was sure he could carry his riders through the passes. Then Pershing, refusing to wait for the untangling of the diplomatic snarl at Washington, utilized the Mexican Northwestern Railway at Aguaje and sent his cavalry by rail to head Villa off.

Another American column rushed to reinforce Carranzista troops closed in at Villa's rear.

Another peril threatens Villa; he depended on support of natives. For years his reputation and deeds as an outlaw kept these people subject to his rule of fear. By brutality he kept them in hand. He could have whatever he needed or whatever his fancy inclined him to take.

But now there has come a change. When the American army entered Mexico the peons feared more of the ruthless, unending warfare they had known, only on a larger and more cruel scale. Instead they have seen a determined, business-like army patiently absorbing the hardships of their country and its mind set only on one thing—the taking of Pancho Villa.

NATIVES RETURN.

The natives have come back out of the hills. They have talked to the American troopers. They have worked with them. They have found pay for what was taken.

The native mind is beginning to see Villa as a doomed man. Soon the natives will take advantage of their opportunity for revenge on Villa. Instead of helping him they will carry information to the Americans.

According to the latest advices, American troops have established an advance base at Elvalle, thirty-five miles southeast of Casas Grandes, other forces are in the neighborhood of Namiquipa, still other troops are reported in the vicinity of Madera, 100 miles south of Casas Grandes, in the heart of Villa's own country.

Samuel Collins, automobile dealer; Mr. and Mrs. Russell T. Childers, Miss Lottie Milinowski and Edward Freman, all of Douglas, were the automobilists who told of the killing at Gibson's Ranch.

According to the story told by the party, the four motorists had been to El Paso on a pleasure trip. They decided they would visit Columbus to view the ruins left by the raid of Villa's men.

After leaving Columbus Wednesday afternoon they were stopped at Hermanas by the railroad section foreman, they said, who warned them that something was wrong at the Gibson ranch, a few miles farther on.

He said that he had seen through a pair of binoculars a mounted band of 100 or more men, Mexican bandits, cross the border near the ranch and ride to a water hole a mile and a half north.

After watering their horses they rode back across the line. Within a short time a number of troopers of the Twelfth Cavalry had come to the ranch house.

The automobilists proceeded toward the ranch, but before they had arrived were accosted by a cavalryman, who advised them to come to the ranch house immediately, so that the detachment could afford them protection.

Colonel Dodd's Cavalry Makes Dash to South In Search of Outlaws

By H. H. STANSBURY.

El Paso, Tex., March 25.—Last night's reports were to the effect that Francisco Villa was not in the trap formed by the armed circle now closing about a band of his followers near Namiquipa, but that he escaped three days ago into the San Miguel country, either through his own cunning, or with the aid of friendly Carranzistas.

This information, brought to El Paso last night from El Valle, caused less interest to be taken at that time in the reports of the enveloping movement in which United States troops are participating.

General Pershing has established a base of supplies at Babicora. It will be used to supply the troops who are participating in the Namiquipa movement.

Luis Herrera had left Chihuahua City with his troops, and was moving south in the direction of Parral. This section of Chihuahua was infested with Villistas. Whether Herrera intended joining the Villa forces or fighting them was not known.

The news of his movements was contained in a telegram received by General Gavira, the Carranza commander at Juarez. The State Department officials were silent over the telegram from Consul Letcher at Chihuahua, which said Herrera was still loyal to Carranza.

CONSUL MAY BE MISLED.

It was feared here that the Consul at Chihuahua had been misled by the Carranzistas, who were in control of the place.

Wireless and courier reports indicated that Colonel George A. Dodd's column, composed of the Seventh and Tenth Cavalry and a battery of the Fourth Field Artillery, had reached Madera. This is 100 miles south of Casas Grandes, where General Pershing has established his headquarters.

This dash to the south included the story of a railroad accident, verifying the fact that General Pershing was using the Northwestern from Casas Grandes as far as the line was open.

A detachment of the Tenth Cavalry, commanded by Colonel Brown, fell behind during the first stages of the march. They reached Casas Grandes at midnight on Sunday. At 4 o'clock Monday morning a number of the horses were loaded in waiting cattle-cars at a point a few miles south of Casas Grandes. The troopers mounted the roofs of the cars and rode with the horses, in Mexican fashion.

TWO TROOPERS HURT.

There were no fatalities. Two of the troopers were injured. Several of the horses were also seriously hurt, and it was necessary to kill them. The remainder of the journey was made overland.

A report received here said that General Pershing had taken possession of the telegraph line along the Northwestern, in order to keep in touch with the advance.

The newspaper correspondents with the expeditionary forces were all at Colonia Dublan. General Pershing was declared to have refused the men permission to go beyond that point. Some of them, discouraged over the prospects of getting out real news, has pleaded with the expedition commander for the privilege of returning to the border.

ESTABLISH PERMANENT CAMP.

The answer to the last request was said to have been a threat of arrest if any correspondent left camp without permission.

It was understood that a permanent garrison would be established at Madera with the Sixteenth and Twentieth Infantry, from which the cavalry could operate as a base. Private information received in El Paso said this movement was now under way.

The question of supplies for the troops farthest south had been temporarily relieved. The agents of the Babicora ranch, owned by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, notified the quartermasters and commissary department to take possession of all foodstuffs on the ranch. The supplies will be available as soon as they can be reached. They consist of 2,000 bushels of beans, 60,000 bushels of corn, 30,000 head of beef, cattle and forage.

Villa has been living off the products of this ranch for months, but the figures given were said to represent only a minimum of what was left. The army officers here expressed themselves as very grateful for the supplies.

SEVEN SOLDIERS ILL.

Seven soldiers, victims of the march across the desert, were returned to Fort Bliss. Private Robertson of the Sixth Infantry was brought in on a stretcher. He was suffering from paralysis, brought on by extreme exhaustion and nervous strain.

Private F. Dobell, Company E, Sixth Infantry, had to be assisted from the train. He carried his shoes under his arm, as his feet were swollen and infected from the blisters which formed as he trudged through the hot sand.

Private E. P. Labrache of the Ambulance Corps became ill sixty miles south of the border.

Private Charles Cates, Company H, Sixth Infantry, was doubled up with rheumatism, caused by exposure to hot suns by day and extreme cold by night.

Other members of the hospital party were Privates Wyckoff, Company I, Sixth Infantry; J. W. F. Pringle, Company F, Sixth Infantry, and L. Smith of the same regiment.

Rumor-Vendors Are Scored by Lansing

Washington, March 25.—Referring to persistent reports of the revolt of General Herrera to Villa, which was proved to be unfounded, and to other alarming rumors from Mexico, Secretary Lansing said:

> I believe a large part of these stories originate in the minds of interested persons who desire intervention. They can have no other purpose than to inflame the minds of the Mexican people.

WOMEN SAVED IN HAVERHILL STORE FIRE

Haverhill, March 25.—Several women were rescued, a large number driven into the snow, and a fireman injured at a two-alarm fire which practically destroyed the Woolworth five and ten-cent store and the clothing store of Rowe & Emerson on Merrimac street, in the heart of the business district, early today.

The fire, which started in the basement of the five and ten-cent store from an unknown cause, was discovered by Henry O'Loughlin, a blind man, and caused damage estimated by the police at about $100,000.

E. H. Johnson carried his aged mother from the fourth floor to safety, and then returning to the house rescued Mrs. Mary Anderson, seventy.

ORPET DEATH TRIAL BEGINS ON APRIL 10

Waukegan, Ill., March 25.—Will H. Orpet, student of the University of Wisconsin, charged with poisoning his former sweetheart, Marian Frances Lambert, a Lake Forest high school girl, entered a plea of not guilty in the Circuit Court, after a motion to quash the indictment had been overruled.

Judge Connelly denied bail and set the trial for April 10.

MRS. HERRICK WINS CUSTODY OF TWINS

By International News Service.

Bridgeport, Ct., March 25.—Mrs. Florence Howes Herrick of Stamford, Ct., was granted a divorce from Leander Shaw Herrick of New York. Mrs. Herrick was granted the custody of her twins, Leander and Anita Belle Herrick, aged ten years. The husband was ordered to pay $1,500 a year for their support.

FLACK ESCAPES ELECTRIC CHAIR

The Single Damper
One single motion of an always cool knob regulates fire and heat. Bakes, checks and kindles—one motion, three results.

The Crawford Oven
has no "secret" quick or slow corners, because heat is distributed evenly—better cooking assured—no waste.

The Convenient Ash Hods are interchangeable. As one empties the other fills up. Empty ashes and bring back coal in one trip.

The Outside Cogwheels
make it easy to tend a Crawford. No ashes—no coal dust—no danger from live coals.

The Removable EndShelves

Madam, there's no range like this in the world

See that Damper. It automatically regulates the oven and the fire. It places the Crawford Range in a class by itself.

Those scientifically arranged heat flues distribute the heat evenly in a Crawford Range. You can't have anything but perfect cooking in a Crawford.

The Damper and the Flues make

perfect from a constructional point of view. They give you more oven heat per pound of coal than any other stove on the market. Then there are those interchangeable ash hods! One full of coal, the other receiving the ashes. As one empties the other fills up.

One trip to empty the ashes and bring back the coal.

The damper which "bakes," "checks" and "kindles" with one motion!

The flues that distribute the heat evenly—no waste! And there are at least seventeen other Crawford advantages demonstrating why this Range is superior to all others.

I have been selling Crawford Ranges for years, Madam, and I am certain there is no other like it as a life investment for your home. And I'm quite sure no other Range can equal Crawford satisfaction.

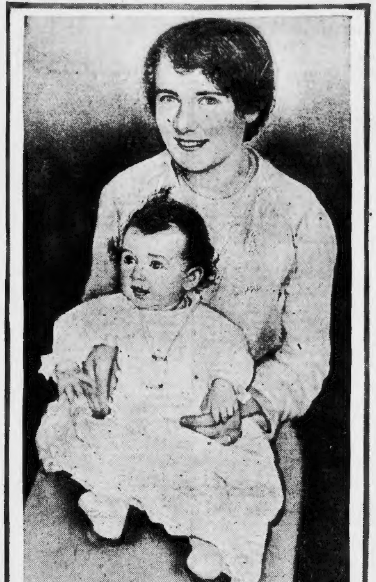
Search for "Best Baby" Begins

First Entry from Somerville



Mrs. Leon E. Slayton of No. 177 Walnut street, Somerville, and her five-months-old baby, Lettie Mae, the first entrant in the AMERICAN'S Better Babies Contest. This husky little candidate was born on Oct. 13, 1915. She weighs fourteen pounds and is 25½ inches in height. Her head circumference is 17 inches, chest 9¾ inches and abdomen 9 inches. The child is a breast-fed baby.

The list of thirty-one prizes to be awarded in the AMERICAN'S Better Babies Contest will be announced in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

The AMERICAN'S Better Babies contest is now on. Every mother in Greater Boston with a baby not younger than six months, nor older than twenty months may register.

The Better Babies editor advises early registration. After carefully measuring your infant, send the record in.

If you can spare the time, write a letter giving other characteristics of the baby, disposition, character—a short history, including anything of interest to the judges. If you have a picture do not fail to send that, too.

Tomorrow, Sunday, a list of thirty-one prizes will be published.

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Boston's Health Commissioner, has consented to act as chairman of the committee to sit in final judgment. He will have five other well-known physicians with him, both men and women.

Dr. Mary Moore, who has charge of the post-natal clinic in connection with the Homeopathic Hospital has consented to act as consulting physician to answer questions sent to the AMERICAN by mothers wishing to know about their babies.

Already, mothers who attend some of Boston's baby clinics are asking questions of the nurses and doctors about the possibility of entering their babies. This is the right way to begin. If parents know a nurse or a physician who will help measure and describe the baby, so much the better.

See to it that Greater Boston wins in fine babyhood, over all other parts of the country where the other Hearst newspapers are also holding baby contests.

5 REVERE JUNK LICENSE CASES DROPPED

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier has nol-prossed the cases against five former members of the Revere City Council, indicted by the Grand Jury for accepting bribes for the issuance of junk licenses.

The men, one of whom was said to have confessed, were Frank J. Sullivan, Benjamin F. Sias, John L. Dalzell, Jacob Mendoza and William W. Gordon. The case against Jacob Romberg, indicted as a "go-between," was also nol-prossed.

In explaining his action, the District Attorney said:

"These defendants I will not further prosecute. The evidence is not such as to justify the expectation that a jury would bring in a verdict. It comes from one man only. The defendants are all men of good reputations, with no previous record, and the testimony of one man without interest could hardly be expected to convince a jury."

WIRELESS CALL BY BUNKER HILL CLUB

A wireless call for help in the campaign to raise $125,000 for the Bunker Hill Boys' Club will go out to the 1,000 amateur wireless operators Sunday afternoon from the station at the Harvard Union. John Willey, the boy whose broad smile radiates good cheer from the car cards and circulars of the big campaign, will ask each young operator to try to enlist all the social clubs in his neighborhood in the work.

(Willard was 28 December 29 last: Moran was 29 last Saturday.)

wants to demonstrate to his followers that he is unquestionably the greatest fighter of this era.

Moran, despite the fact that he is spotting Willard fifty pounds in weight, six inches in height and six inches in reach, is confident that he will do what no other man ever has accomplished—score a knockout over Willard.

And Willard, possessing the confidence that comes from the knowledge that he is champion and that he overshadows his rival in a physical way, says he will go into the ring with just one big idea in mind—to send Moran to the mat in the quickest time possible.

But will the men, when they actually get into the ring, act as savagely as they predict. Will they go at it hammer and tongs, or will each "play safe"—and thus place another blot on the much-splotched escutcheon of the New York ring?

HAVE MUCH TO GAIN.

Both men have much to gain by fighting with all their power, battling from gong to gong and with the savagery that delights the ring fan. But each has almost as much to lose by risking a knockout, and because of this there are many who fear that if each man finds his foe worthy of his steel in the first few rounds, each will "stall" the rest of the way.

RULES IN DOUBT.

There is still a question as to what rules shall govern the fight, and upon the answer may depend the kind of fracas it will be. Will the men battle under the straight Marquis of Queensberry rules, which bars clinching, or under the New York State rules which permits clinching and hitting with one hand free.

Charlie (Old Goodeye) White, who will referee, is an exponent of the Queensberry rules. He has refused in the past to recognize any other. But White must take his orders from the Boxing Commission. Just what these orders may be will not be revealed until the men get into the ring. If no clinching is allowed the fight may be a slam-bang affair with the men slugging, toe-to-toe. If the other rules prevail, it may ruin the fight from the spectator's viewpoint.

The men will go into the Arena tonight carrying less money on their chances than in any important battle in ring history. There was a fair amount of wagering done during the day, but it was scattered, and the totals involved were small.

ODDS ON WILLARD.

The prevailing odds are:

Ten-to-seven that Willard will win, either by knockout or popular decision. If both men are on their feet at the end of the ten rounds, the decision will be left to a concensus of opinion among New York sport writers.

Three-to-one that there will not be a knockout.

One-to-three that Willard will knock out Moran.

Five-to-one that Moran will not knock out Willard.

Willard goes into battle not only a favorite in the betting, but a heavy favorite in the opinion of the experts who have seen both men in their workouts. Every one admits that Moran is a hard man to beat and that he has a terrific wallop. But only his staunchest admirers believe that he can overcome the tremendous handicap of the champion's.

WOMEN TO SEE FIGHT.

There wil be several hundred women at the ringside tonight. Many of them have secured boxes in the section set aside especially for feminine fans.

And there will be in the big auditorium some of the wealthiest and most famous men in America. It will be a crowd unlike any that ever has been gathered under one roof to witness a duel between ring gladiators, a throng that will have representatives from every class and every nationality in America.

The villagers have looked forward to this day; their appetite for battle has been whetted. And they will go to the Garden in the hope that the hunger will be satisfied. They will give Jess Willard a rousing cheer, but they will save most of their vocal energy so as to give Frank Moran an ovation, when he steps into the ring, that promises to eclipse any greeting in ring history.

The exact amount taken in to date remains shrouded in the conflicting statements of the promoters. The figures range from $125,000 to $140,000. There were several hundred of the $20 and $25 seats unsold this forenoon, but the men behind the fight were sure they will be disposed of before battle time. The total receipts probably will be around $140,000, exclusive of the $10,000 secured for moving picture rights.

Who'll win?

I wish I knew.

Jess Sure of Winning ◆ Is Looking for a Kayo

By JESS WILLARD,
Heavyweight Champion of the World.
New York, Saturday, March 25.

It is hard for me to say exactly how I will win. That I will be returned the victor over Frank Moran is the most positive statement I can make. Whether it will be a victory via the knockout route, or simply by a general decision, remains in doubt.

IF I CAN WIN IN ONE PUNCH I WILL DO SO.

IF IT TAKES THE FULL SCHEDULE OF TEN ROUNDS, I WILL WIN JUST THE SAME.

THERE IS NOT THE SLIGHTEST DOUBT IN MY MIND THAT THE HONORS WILL FALL MY WAY.

If this bout were scheduled to go to a finish I would not hesitate to declare that Moran would be knocked out, but as it is only for ten rounds, it would be ridiculous to make such a declaration.

Moran may put up such a defensive fight it will be an impossibility to reach the vital spot. A GOOD, STRONG MAN AS HE IS COULD CLINCH THE BETTER PART OF THE DISTANCE AND MANAGE TO STAY THE LIMIT.

If Moran comes out and fights the aggressive battle he is credited with planning, the bout will end suddenly, with Moran on the knockout end of the scrap. On the other hand, if he fights slow, keeping carefully covered up, there is doubt as to its length.

It is my estimation I outclass Moran in all the essentials of fighting. I have decided advantage in height, weight, reach and strength.

As far as infighting is concerned I am Moran's superior—I believe that my struggle with Johnson proves the truth of this statement—and if part of the time of the battle is taken up in that manner my superior strength will overcome my opponent.

IF MORAN STARTS IN TO RUSH THE BATTLE I AM SATISFIED I WILL KNOCK HIM OUT, PROBABLY WITH A RIGHT UPPERCUT, THE BLOW THAT DID DEADLY DAMAGE TO JOHNSON BEFORE HE SUCCUMBED. If he stands off and tries to box I have no doubt that my left jab and hook will wear him down before the ten rounds end.

There are tales galore of Moran's terrible right to the body. Right now I want to say that I have been hit harder than Moran can wallop, so I am not worrying on that score.

That's about all I can say regarding my opinion of the outcome of the bout.

From all reports, Frank is in tip-top shape and fit to fight hard for the world's title. For myself, I can say I am in the best of condition and fit to fight hard to defend my title. IF SUCH A THING AS MORAN'S KNOCKING ME OUT COULD POSSIBLY HAPPEN, I WILL BE THE FIRST MAN TO CONGRATULATE HIM. THERE CAN BE NO EXCUSES GIVEN AFTER THE FRAY IS OVER.

JURY OF TWELVE EXPERTS IS EVENLY DIVIDED ON BIG FIGHT

The International News Service asked twelve men to sit as a pre-jury on the Willard-Moran fight. Here is the result of their verdict:

JOHN L. SULLIVAN—Moran knows more and is big enough to lick anyone.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES—Willard is in no danger of losing his title.

BOB FITZSIMMONS—I cannot see where Moran has a chance.

JAMES J. CORBETT—Willard is too big and strong. He should win easily.

FREDDIE WELSH—Moran is good enough to win by a knockout.

WILLIE RITCHIE—Moran has an excellent chance to wear Willard down.

JOHNNY KILBANE—Moran has got to be more than good to beat Willard.

JACK McAULIFFE—Moran by a knockout.

TOM SHARKEY—I think Moran will win.

TOMMY BURNS—Moran should win on points.

BILLY MULDOON—Willard is better than Corbett or Fitzsimmons ever was.

MIKE DONOVAN—I cannot see where Moran has a chance.

LUSTIG-LORE BOUT PROVES A SAD ONE

In Referee Conley's opinion Johnny (Young) Lustig of New York, and Johnny Lore of Montreal, were guilty of pulling a "bloomer" in the windup event at the B. M. A. A. show last night, and in the eighth round he bade the two boxers beat it, declaring it "no contest." The management announced to the half-filled house that the "rain checks" will be good at next Friday night's performance.

After a busy first round in the semi-final, Lee Anderson, the Berlin, N. H., colored boy, threw Jim McDonald to the canvass and thus earned his disqualification. Lee looked best up to the time the set-to was stopped. Jimmy Kenney and "Battling Dick" Peters went six slashing rounds to a draw. Jimmy had a shade, if anything. In the curtain-raiser "Red" Kelley outpointed Young O'Brien.

John L. Favors Moran ◆ Looks for K. O. Ending

BY JOHN L. SULLIVAN,
First American Heavyweight Champion of the World.
WRITTEN EXCLUSIVELY FOR INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

New York, March 25.—Yesterday I said I would not pick a winner in tonight's Willard-Moran title fight at Madison Square Garden. But so many men have come to me and said that this was dodging a real issue that I am going to change my mind.

I like Moran. I think he will win, and look to see him cop the heavyweight crown with a knockout punch.

Moran is a fighter at heart. He is cool and clever, and, if he can get his right over, he is as deadly as one of those big German guns.

Willard, as I see him, is more of a merchant. He has something to sell. That something is his fighting ability, and I will admit that up to the present time he has made some good bargains.

But a hired soldier has never been as good a fighter as a volunteer, and Willard, by his own confession, something of a mercenary in the ranks of pugilism, is facing tonight a man who enlisted in the fight game for sheer love of battle itself, with gain a secondary consideration.

MORAN ALWAYS FOUGHT HARD.

An examination of Moran's ring record will prove absolutely that most of his fights during his first several years in the game gave him no cause to hope for real great riches. He fought just as hard for a lot of the measly little purses as he will fight tonight for a small fortune. Willard, too, fought for some mighty small money, but he never put the pep into his work that would have been involuntary if he had had a fighting heart. It wasn't until they pointed him at Johnson, and promised him a million if he won, that he ever did a real stint of training. And even when he got in the ring with Jack in Havana, he breezed along in a good-natured, easy-going way, until the weakened stamina of the black man really decided the result.

PRAISES MORAN'S METHOD.

When you think of a champion, you involuntarily picture a man who tears in like a fury as soon as the first gong rings, and fights like a fury right up to the end. Willard never has been that kind of a fighter. Moran always has been.

That is why I like Moran. When I was champion, that was the way I fought. When Paddy Ryan was champion, he fought that way. So did Corbett, and Fitzsimmons, and Big Jeff. Johnson fought that way, too, but he was such a smooth worker that he never looked to be trying as hard as he really was.

A man can't force himself to battle like a tiger. He has to want to do it, and if it does not come natural right from the start he never will acquire the genuine lust for battle that brings the crowd to its feet and makes everybody hail him as a real champion.

Of course, every man has the capacity for anger and ferocity, and in some natures it is buried deeper than in others. It may be, as some good critics of boxing have said in the last few days, that if Moran stings Willard pretty hard early in the fight, the big fellow will wake up and fight like a wild man. Then we will see a fight worth talking about, and I believe if Willard gets angry, Moran will keep his usual cool head and be more certain of winning than he will be if Jess lays back and makes a waiting fight of it.

EXPECTS SLASHING FIGHT.

If Moran wins he will win with one or two punches. He will land on Willard's jaw and it will be all over. Willard may win that way, of course, but if Moran is going to lose I think it will be on points, because I don't think Jess will knock him out unless he does it with a lucky punch, and I think Frank is too foxy to get careless.

I hope to see a slashing, rushing fight. I hope that the Boxing Commission will rule that the men may box under straight Marquis of Queensberry rules, which compel a man to protect himself at all times.

Clean breaks may be all right, but this is one fight where no harm can be done either man by a stretching of the rule so that the men can hit in the breakaway.

I do not agree with those who say that Willard's best chance to win is in his great height and strength. If Jess wins, he must do it on boxing skill, courage and punching ability. When he gets in there with Moran, he is going to find that the difference in their size on paper has been minimized in reality until Frank will seem just about as big as he ought to be.

MORAN HAS EXPERIENCE.

I mean by this that Willard is going to face a man who is clever and experienced enough to take advantage of everything in boxing that tends to offset a disadvantage in size. There are two or three ways to step inside of a punch, and once you have stepped inside, it does not make any difference whether the other fellow's arms are three feet long, or thirty. You are in there, and, if your eyes are open, you will find sooner or later a vulnerable spot left open.

There isn't a sidestep, or duck, or shift that won't be just as easy for Moran as for Willard, and, if the smaller can make the big man miss a few times, he will surely find the right spot, sooner or later, to land a deciding blow.

Willard will have to match trick with trick, blow with blow, if he is going to win. I wonder if he can do it. I don't think he can win by sheer weight and strength. He could not beat Gunboat Smith, and he was as big then as he is now. He hadn't had as much experience but he had been boxing long enough to have realized the advantage of his superior size, if such a realization ever was due to come to him.

QUESTIONS WILLARD'S "PEP."

In those days, too, Willard was an eager aspirant for the championship, and, if he couldn't let the thought of that goal stir him up to a point where he could beat Smith, why is there any reason to suppose that he will be able to fight any harder now to hold something that he has already won and enjoyed, than he could in a battle which was either to bring him one step nearer his ambition or set him down a few rungs on the ladder.

Moran Sorry for Jess ◆ Sure of Landing Title

By FRANK MORAN,
Challenger for World's Heavyweight Championship Title.
New York, Saturday, March 25.

I FEEL absolutely certain of becoming the heavyweight champion of the world. For nearly a year I have waited for this opportunity. There never was any doubt in my mind that I was Willard's master. They have been saying that Willard is too big to be knocked out. But all these beliefs will be dispelled tonight.

I'LL WIN BY A CLEAN KNOCKOUT.

There isn't a man in the fighting game who can stand up under my right hand punches. Willard has never been up against anything like my punch.

They can say what they want about his fight with Johnson. I know all about the negro; didn't I fight him over in Paris? I took all he had and it didn't fease me. But had the fight gone another two rounds I surely would have flattened Johnson, and in that event Willard never would have been the titleholder.

I HAVE MY PLAN OF BATTLE ALL FIGURED OUT; THAT IS WHY I KNOW I SURELY WILL WIN BY A KNOCKOUT. I EXPECT TO GET OVER THE FINISHING PUNCH IN THE SEVENTH OF EIGHTH ROUND.

I have never met Willard before; haven't even spoken to him. Still, I have a pretty good line on him.

After the first two rounds I'll know all about his reported prowess. Then I'm going to cut loose. I'll out-think him and out-general him. WILLARD WILL DO ALL THE WORRYING AND, WHEN I HAVE HIM WORRIED INTO A STATE OF BEWILDERMENT, YOURS TRULY WILL CUT LOOSE.

They are warning me against Willard's left hand. Well, let me say that no one can whip me with a left hand. Johnson couldn't do it and you can't make people believe that Willard has a better left than Johnson had.

The only physical advantage that Willard has is in height and weight. There have been a great many precedents in boxing to prove that a fighter with these natural advantages can easily be beaten. I will have no trouble hitting Willard. I got to Jim Coffey twice without any trouble, and surely the Roscommon Giant is faster, cleverer and harder to hit than Willard.

As regards Willard's wonderful uppercut, let me say that he will have less chance of landing it on me than when he fought Johnson. I'LL TAKE ALL THAT WILLARD HAS, BUT HE NEVER CAN TAKE WHAT I'LL HAND OUT TO HIM.

BETTING IS VERY LIGHT

Few Big Wagers Recorded on Title Fight; George Considine Backing Challenger.

By TOM THORPE.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Willard-Moran championship fight will break at least one record. Less money will be risked on the winner than was ever before wagered on a championship encounter.

This scarcity of betting does not mean that interest in the big muss is not as keen as in former battles. The fact that Referee Charley White is not allowed to decide the winner in the ring has kept the betting down to a minimum.

If a decision was allowed by law it is safe to say that as many dollars would change hands as ever passed from pocket to pocket on any fight. Most of the wagers that have been made have been on the ability of one or the other fighter to score a knockout.

TALENT SEEKS ACTION.

The chances of a knockout in a ten-round contest between fighters as large and strong as Willard and Moran is so remote that few care to make a bet of this kind. Few sporting men will wager when it looks as if the bet would be a draw.

The greater the chances of the money changing hands the greater the betting interest. If the bout was to a finish, then all records for betting would be smashed to smithereens.

George Considine, who is considered a wiseacre in the sporting world, has backed Frank Moran to beat the champion. Considine took the short end of a $3,000 bet at 2 to 1 that the sorrel-topped challenger would win the popular decision. He also wagered a large sum on the ability of Moran to keep Jess at a safe distance for the ten rounds and be on his feet when the final bell sounded.

2 TO 1 AVERAGE PRICE.

Al Kaufman risked $1,000 against Owen More's $600 that Willard would be the winner. Maxey Blumenthal, the bookmaker, bet $2,500 against $500 than Moran will not knock Willard out. He also put up $2,000 against $1,000 that Willard will not win by a knockout.

Arnold Rothstein bet Dr. Rosenkranz $2,500 to $1,300 that Willard would win. Morris Rose took the short end of a bet of $500 against $1,500 that Willard wins by a knockout.

Frank McDonald, another member of the bookmaking fraternity, took the short end of a wager of $500 against $3,500 that Moran wins by a knockout.

RING RESULTS

Baltimore, March 25.—Pete Herman, the New Orleans bantam, and Frankie Brown of New York went fifteen slashing rounds to a draw. The bulk of the fans thought Herman shaded Brown.

Lowell, March 25.—Finney Boyle of Lowell outclassed Milton Blair of New York in their twelve-round bout.

Berlin, N. H., March 25.—Eddie Flynn of Peabody, outpointed Young Brusso of Revere in a fast 10-round bout.

P. D. at Skull Practice

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

MIAMI, Fla., March 25.—"Gee, but I'd like to be with a regular ball club once more," wailed "Stuffy" McInnis this morning. "A few years ago playing the infield with the Athletics was a pleasure. The other three men did their own thinking and all you had to do was to look out for yourself. Today I've got to spend so much time thinking for the other fellows that I don't get a chance to play my own game."

The pride of Gloucester spoke feelingly of the days when he and Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and J. Franklin Baker composed the great $100,000 infield. After watching the Braves work for two days "Gloucester Jack" grew reminiscent. Old-time thoughts fleeted through his mind, and today he is anything but pleased with his lot.

This afternoon the Braves and the Athletics meet in their last Miami clash, and the boys under Manager Stallings feel confident of another win.

Yesterday Hughes, Allen and Nehf let the clan of Mack down with four blows and nary a run, while their associates gathered in thirteen bingles and seven tallies. The score might just as well have been fifteen as seven, for there were innumerable chances to pile up additional counters.

It was after the fray yesterday that McInnis grew so thoughtful. At that time he announced that nothing would suit him better than a week at Miami.

"Stuffy" thinks that if allowed to stay here for seven days he would be in condition to go North and give "Connie" Mack a wonderful year of service.

McInnis thinks the Braves are one of the best ball clubs in either major league. Konetchy takes his fancy, especially Ed's great size and the fine mark the other fielders have to shoot for. The pitching staff he thinks ideal, and though he has not seen the other clubs in the old league, he believes that on form the Braves will be a mighty tough club for any team to beat out in a pennant fight.

SQUAD WILL GO SLOW.

Manager Stallings has decided to let up on the work for the boys, and as a result considerable of the morning practice has been cut out. Today the squad is down pretty fine.

Yesterday morning less than half the men went out for practice. Today even fewer went along, and it is now highly probable that the only work the boys will have until after the trip North is started will be the afternoon games.

Several of the younger members of the squad were considerably pleased when the big chief told them that there would not be a cut in the size of the squad until after Boston was reached.

"Big Bill" James is feeling like a two-year-old, and the chances are he will cut loose in practice this afternoon. Bill worked hard yesterday and cut loose to a greater extent than he has at any time since arriving here. This morning he told the writer that he felt fine and that there was no soreness in his arm.

P. D. ADDRESSES TEAM.

Stallings crossed all the wise ones yesterday when he took President Haughton into his famous skull practice session. P. D. is the first big league president—and Stallings has worked for four others—to attend one of the conferences. Haughton addressed the boys and listened to their series of questions.

It was after that the team decided to contribute $100 to the Bunker Hill Boys' Club building fund, in addition to the $100 contributed by the club itself.

The more one looks at the Athletic bunch that is here, collectively, of course, the less it resembles a ball club.

BILL JAMES'S ARM DEAD, SAYS EVERS

Miami, Fla., March 25.—If George Stallings and his Boston Braves dethrone Pat Moran and his Phillies as champions of the National League this season the Hub city outfit will have to do it without the services of Big Bill James, hero of the 1914 World Series.

That James is through as a pitcher appears to be unanimous among critics and members of the Braves' squad. "His arm is gone. Bill knows it, and we know it," said Johnny Evers today.

PUTTING TOURNEY FIELD IN PLAYOFF

Despite the fact that there were a lot of post entrants in the amateur golf putting contest at the Jordan Marsh Company store yesterday, 125 players in all competing, there was no change in the standing of the leaders, and W. H. Mertz, W. H. Workman, J. R. Wyckoff, William Baine and H. Callaway remained tied for first place, with a score of 33. The playoff for first and second prizes takes place today at 2 p. m.

BOSTON GOLFERS SHINE.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 25.—Parker Whittemore, Brookline, Mass., topped a field of 63 in the Tin Whistles' bogey tournament with a score of 7 up. C. F. Lancaster, Boston, was the runnerup.

THE B. A. A. and St. Nicholas sevens clash in the second game of their post-series to determine the championship of the Amateur Hockey League, at the Arena tonight.

Hobey Baker is coming over in a desperate mood. He played with the St. Nicholas in its losing game with the B. A. A. in New York last Saturday night, the first one in the playoff series, and as he has always shown a fondness for the big local surface, is out to put up the premier performance of his career.

Baker is noted for his long shots, but Art Donahue has played against the New York flash so often that in order to score the St. Nick wonder will have to carry the puck right up to the net.

The demand for tickets for this game is unprecedented, claims Manager Louzee, and it looks as if the S. R. O. will be hung up early.

CHINESE BOXER IN TITLE BOUTS

Philadelphia, March 25.—The University of Pennsylvania will be represented in the Amateur Athletic Union championship boxing tournament, to be held in Boston April 3 and 4, by Don Lew, a Chinese student, it was announced here today.

Lew is the 135-pound champion at Pennsylvania and has been entered in that class in the tournament.

WILLIAMS IN FINAL FOR INDOOR TITLE

Norris Williams, 2d, the former national lawn tennis champion, and Irving C. Wright, by their play in the semi-finals, won the right to contest today in the final round of the annual indoor tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Williams, who captured the event last year, was in remarkable form, defeating H. C. Johnson, 6—1, 6—1. Most of his points were on aces. G. P. Gardner Jr. fell before the effective chop-stroking of Wright, 7—5, 6—4.

Tris Claims He Is Still a Hold-Out, But They Don't Think So at Hot Springs Camp

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 25.—The real news to the World's Champions' camp is the appearance of Tris Speaker in uniform. It looks very much as if he had come to a real understanding with President Lannin, although he stoutly declares he has not signed.

Manager Carrigan says he knows nothing of a contract and has not even asked Speaker what he named as a figure to Mr. Lannin.

The way it looks from this distance, with the statement of the club president that a satisfactory letter had been received from Speaker, is that Tris named terms in his letter to the office, and received a wire to report.

This, if true, is as good as a contract, and while Tris may not believe himself signed, he is, just as if he had turned a new contract over to Carrigan upon his arrival.

"Everything will be all right," is the way Speaker puts it, and from his cheerful manner and the way in which he took hold of his work, it leaves little doubt but that everything is all right for both the club and the player.

PITTSFIELD HERE FOR TITLE GAME

The Pittsfield High School basketball team, which plays Wellesley High for the State championship tonight in the State Armory, Somerville, arrived in Boston at noon today. The team was accompanied by a coach and 185 rooters.

Although going to play far away from home and before a strange crowd, Pittsfield feels confident of winning from Coach Fred Putnam's team.

The Pittsfield team, which has defeated all the strong school representatives in the western part of the State, should appeal to the Greater Boston basketball followers.

The lineup:

PITTSFIELD			WELLESLEY
Martin	l. b.	l. f.	Finnerty
Fasce	r. b.	r. f.	McCabe
Lindham	c.	c.	Rourke
Aldrich	l. f.	l. b.	Stover
Nichols	r. f.	r. b.	Keefe
Minsky	sub	sub	Chase

Referee—William Cody. Umpire—Albert J. Woodlock.

TWO RECORDS HUNG UP AT BOYS' TRIALS

Two new running records were hung up in the regimental meet trials at the East Armory.

Fred Monagle, English High, broke the record he held in conjunction with Shelbourne, a team mate, in the 50-yard dash, negotiating the distance in 6 3-5s. W. Nolan, East Boston High, placed the intermediate 220-yard record at 24 2-5s.

English High and Commerce carried off the honors at the trials. The two squads qualified 22 and 25 athletes, respectively.

HEALTH HINTS
Inflammation
Minard's liniment promptly reduces inflammation and promotes rapid, healthy healing, because this old prescription is a safe, trustworthy antiseptic that acts quickly, giving almost instant relief. It is absolutely pure, is easy to use and does not stain or blister. It is the one dependable liniment in almost every New England home.—Advertisement.

Home Run for Speaker

Sox vs. Pirates Sunday

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 25.—Manager Carrigan is somewhat anxiously awaiting a letter from President Lannin, which was mailed in Boston, March 22. This is expected to clear the puzzling situation as regards Tris Speaker.

The Texan's first day in the uniform of a World's Champion for the season was a corker. He has been working out a bit down in Hubbard City, from all appearances, and clearly showed he had his eye on the pill, while he went back after the fly balls with that confidence so familiar to all followers of the sport.

Speaker only got four hits for three runs, these being divided into a homer, a three bagger and two singles. The home run drive was over the right field fence, the longest drive in Majestic Park.

This is the second day of the real team work, with every man who is expected to play this season at the camp except Gainer, who has not reported as yet, nor has any word come from him since his first message. Manager Carrigan is not at all worried about this as he feels that when Del does show up he will be in condition and will need only a little workout to get into his stride.

LEWIS HAS THUMB HURT.

The work yesterday was somewhat more strenuous than upon previous days, as the boys seemed to take a fresh hold with the appearance of the Texan. Now they feel that the team is set for the fray and will go at it with nothing to take their minds off their work, nor anything in the way of a handicap over the team of last season; in fact, the World's Champions now stand as they finished last season, with the added strength of the pitching of Gregg and that of Mays, which looks to be about as good as anything on the team right now.

Duffy but into Henriksen's class yesterday by being injured, not seriously, but enough to take him out of the practice game. The real outfield has not worked together as a whole this season so far.

Barry developed lameness in his throwing arm, which he will favor for a few days. These injuries gave Henriksen and McNally chances to shine. McNally is a grand little fielder as to that.

If "Hennie" were to be played regularly as most outfielders are, he would in my opinion, hit like a wonder. He takes a good swing and is not going after bad balls. The pitchers have to pitch to him.

PLAY PIRATES TOMORROW.

The weather has been nice and warm after the shower of Thursday, and the boys worked out under the best conditions. They are being put through a vigorous batting practice, running out their hits and bunting to pull the pitcher over to cover, each fielder getting plenty of work in this direction. They are fast getting into their stride, while the infielders, including Janvrin, are pulling the ball across the diamond in mid-season form.

The team is well fortified in all departments, having a string of second men that would look good on anybody's regular team.

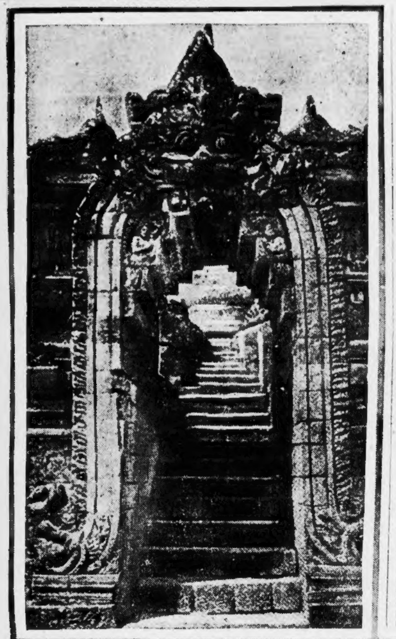
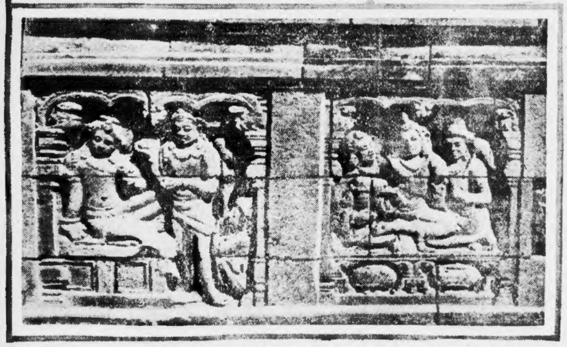
Hidden Temple of 20,000 Buddhas

Garrett P. Serviss Writes Concerning the Amazing Pyramid Structure in Central Java, Lost to Sight for Centuries





These are two of the rectangularly framed sculptures of the Buddha, in high relief. There are thousands in all on the walls of the temple at Boro-Boedver, in Java. Each sculpture tells a chapter of the story of Buddha. The picture above is one of the typical, ornate, stepped arches of the temple.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE recent supposed discovery of the grave of Buddha, the founder of the religious system of Buddhism, which has spread so far over the Eastern world, gives renewed interest to the "Great Buddha," Boro Budor, or Boro Boedoer, pyramid temple, in the central part of the island of Java. It is the finest monument of Buddhistic architecture in existence, and, although partly ruined, is still every impressive.

Various dates have been assigned to its foundation, some of them going back as much as 1,200 years. Other estimates cut these figures in half. But, at any rate, the great temple was for centuries lost sight of and forgotten until its rediscovery by Sir Stamford Raffles, in 1815.

It stands on an elevation in the midst of a beautiful valley which is surrounded by four ancient volcanoes, whose solidified lava forms the materials from which the stone blocks of the temple were hewed. In form it resembles the step pyramids of Egypt. It rises from a square base which measures 520 feet on a side. About ten feet above the base there is a broad platform, constituting the first step. Above this rise, in succession, each diminishing in circumference, a series of five rectangular terraces, bordered with massive stone walls eight feet in height. At frequent intervals along the tops of these walls rise alcoves, or niches, serving as chapels, each of which contains a statue of Buddha and is surmounted by a curious and richly ornamented dome.

A door in each wall gives access to the next terrace above. Between the alcoves, or chapels, there are bas-reliefs on the face of the wall, including figures of Buddha, as well as purely ornamental designs. The interior walls of the chapels are also covered with a profusion of carvings, and the front of the lower terrace beneath the chapels carries a great bas-relief, surrounding the entire structure, and representing scenes from Buddha's life and from the celebrations of the mysteries of his religion.

It is said that there are more than 2,000 large figures in the bas-reliefs, not counting the less conspicuous ones. Buddha's statues alone number 436. Perhaps no other divinity was ever so multitudinously represented and honored with statues in a single temple.

Above the rectangular terraces rise three circular terraces without walls. The lower and larger of these contains thirty-two, the next twenty-four, and the third sixteen small shrines, or dagobas, shaped like bells and roofed with stone lattice-work, looking through which the visitor can see, seated within each shrine, a figure of Buddha. Crowning the whole is a gigantic dagoba, resembling a cupola, 200 feet in circumference. This, it has been thought, was the most important part of the structure. In its centre is an empty chamber, ten feet deep, which seems to have been intended to contain some great and precious relic.

All the work upon this wonderful structure is of the most elaborate kind. Its height to the cupola is 118 feet. The four series of stairways which lead from base to summit pass, as already said, through doorways in the successive terrace walls, and each doorway is spanned with a stepped arch whose keystone is ornamented with a grotesque mask. Among the scenes represented in the innumerable bas-reliefs are processions, sea fights and battles, as well as religious ceremonies.

The edifice has been much damaged by earthquakes, which are frequent in Java, but it has managed to survive in surprising completeness. The Kedos Valley, in which it lies, presents one of the most beautiful tropical scenes in the world. It must have been a vast centre of pilgrimage in the days of the glory of the great pyramid-temple, and that it should have been lost sight of for centuries is a striking confirmation of Charles F. Johnson's line: "Surely the ups and downs of this world are past calculation!"

Their Married Life

Laura Reveals to Helen the Secret of Her Great Unhappiness

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service.

THE telephone awakened Helen out of a sound sleep, and she started up hurriedly only to settle back on her pillow with the knowledge that Mary would answer it. She and Warren had been up very late the night before, and, as she had been very tired, she had gone to bed directly after lunch to get some sleep before Laura should arrive.

The telephone rang again, and she wondered irritably why Mary did not answer. Really, she would have to be reproved if she did not do better; and then Helen remembered that this was Mary's day out. Again that annoying tinkle, and this time Helen sprang up and went out into the hall. Her "hello" was not too cordial until she recognized Laura's voice.

"Helen, I don't think I can manage to come over this afternoon, after all. Will you excuse me?"

The quality of Laura's voice banished the last vestige of sleep from Helen's eyes—it sounded as though she were in trouble and needed help. Her voice sounded strained and unnatural, and the situation required an unusual amount of tact.

"You simply must come, dear," Helen said sweetly, as though she suspected nothing.

"But I won't be any kind of a companion; I am awfully nervous today."

"I am all alone. I have let my maid go out and there is no one here. I shall be awfully disappointed if you don't come."

Laura hesitated, and Helen jumped into the breach.

"You simply must come. I won't forgive you if you disappoint me. I'm sure it will do you good to get out into the air. Why don't you walk over?"

"No, I'll come in the car. All right, Helen, you can expect me, but I told you the truth when I said that I am terribly nervous."

SHE PREPARES FOR LAURA

Helen just laughed and rang off. She rubbed her eyes and then went into the bathroom and plunged her face into cold water. The icy sting refreshed her, and she proceeded leisurely enough with the rest of her dressing. It was only 3 o'clock, Laura would probably wait until four to come. Helen could not help thinking a little regretfully of that extra hour that she might have slept. Really she and Warren must cut out night hours.

Now that she thought of it, she actually hadn't been in bed before 12 or 1 in ages. They had spent so many evenings with the careless Bohemian people who never went to bed until the hours were small. Helen had noticed that Anne's small white face was beginning to look even smaller—that child wasn't used to such hours either.

Well, that was neither here nor there. There was another problem still more important. What was there about Laura Richards' life that was making her unhappy, that was changing her from a contented woman to a bitter type of wife entirely unlike her ordinary disposition?

Helen wheeled the little tea wagon that was a recent acquisition into the dining room and arranged the cups and saucers and plates on it. She filled the tea ball with her best orange pekoe, and placed the muffins ready for toasting. There was fresh butter, too. Helen remembered how Laura adored unsalted butter, and had bought some on purpose. The bell rang just as she finished. Laura already! Why it was only three thirty, that was strange.

"I came right up," Laura said as Helen swung the door open and pulled her into the hall. "I'm glad you made me come, Helen," and she turned her head away as her eyes suddenly filled with tears.

Helen was more mystified than ever. She could not understand Laura's attitude. First she was bitter and then she was miserable. There was only one answer to the riddle and Helen dreaded to think of such a thing.

In the living rom with the shades drawn and the lamp lighted, over the tea cups and toasted English muffins, Laura raised tragic eyes to Helen suddenly and said:

LAURA TELLS THE SECRET

"Well, I have decided to tell you, dear, you are so sure, that you can help me. It's another woman."

"Oh, Laura, are you sure?" Helen was truly amazed; she had thought of such a consequence, but only remotely. Somehow Laura's husband seemed such a different type of man.

"Of course I am sure. It is hardly clandestine any longer, everybody knows. I am surprised that you haven't heard."

"That is hardly strange," Helen explained, "considering that I don't know any of your friends."

"Really, Helen, you are more fortunate than you know. I am telling you frankly, a woman never knows when she is well off. I used to think that I was utterly miserable when I was alone and friendless without money. I know there must be hundreds of other women just as I was, but if they only knew, they would try to be more contented with their lot. I never dreamed then that I could know the depths of misery I have endured for the past few months."

Laura spoke wearily, with a toneless quality that brought tears to Helen's eyes. Why was there so much misery in the world? Above all, why couldn't men be decently faithful to the women they married? Laura was right; she might better have remained single and endured the pangs of loneliness than to have had her married life turn out like this.

Like a flash her mind leaped back to her own skirting of the precipice. She and Warren had come very near the parting of the ways, nearer than she had thought possible. Perhaps things might not be so bad for Laura.

"Can you tell me about it, Laura," Helen said, gently. "You see I can tell better after I know."

"There's very little to tell. She is a woman of means, a flighty little soul, one of the appealing doll-like variety that men often admire so much. Her husband can't seem to do anything with her, and all the men spoil her utterly. We met her at an affair up at the Armstrongs', and she marked John as an especial favorite that evening.

"Of course, I laughed, and in fact we both did, her preference was so marked and she showed it so childishly in a pretty confidential manner that always takes with men. John was flattered of course, and afterward he began to show a preference for her.

"At first I could not believe it, but when they began to appear together in places where I could not help but hear it, I lost my head, and I haven't known what to do. There have been times when I have been frantic. I know that I can't bear it much longer, Helen. Something will have to be done."

And Helen, looking matters frankly in the face, agreed with Laura that things could hardly be worse.

(Another incident in this absorbing series will appear here soon.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By SEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE IS UNWORTHY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young lady about six months ago, and have been going with her ever since. Recently, through friends, I learned that she is and has been engaged to another man long before I met her.

I asked her if this statement was true, and she said it was. Then when I asked her why she kept me in ignorance of the engagement, she wouldn't answer.

Kindly advise me what to do, as I couldn't bear to give her up.

A CONSTANT READER.

WHETHER you think you can bear to give her up or not, you must do so at once. The girl evidently lacks loyalty and honesty and is unlikely to make any man happy. I actually think you are far more fortunate than is the man to whom she is engaged.

HE IS NOT WORTH LOVING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-one years of age and counted very pretty. About eight months ago I got acquainted with a young physician of the nighborhood, through flirtation out of my home window. He showed in many ways that he liked me.

He took me one Sunday to the theatre and was ashamed to walk with me, because I am a cripple, which he did not know. The following evening I looked out of the window to speak to him and he pulled down the shade so I could not look into his room. After six months he started to speak to me. Dear Miss Fairfax, I love him and think of him very much. Do you taing I ought to give him any confidence after he made me feel so broken-hearted?

HELEN.

YOU have no right to flirt with this young physician, and when he showed you plainly that he was ashamed to be out with you because of your lameness, and then insulted you by refusing to continue the acquaintance, you were given very clear evidence that he was a cad and had not the kindness for suffering which any physician worth the name ought to possess. He is not worth caring for. Please don't risk your happiness by giving your affections or confidence to this man.

ASK FOR AN EXPLANATION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and have been going with a young man of the same age for four months. Now he disappointed me, and, though we work in the same place, never made a move to come and explain the disappointment. I grew to like him very much and would like to have his company again. So do you think it would be right for me to ask him why he couldn't come around.

B. K.

IT is very foolish to lose a friendship through lack of a little simple frankness. Go to this young man in a quiet, dignified way and ask him if he has any explanation to offer you for the disappointments which you feel fairly sure he did not purposely cause you.

Seeks Health by Daily Program

Regular Rest and Regular Exercise the Great Secret, Says Cathleen Nesbitt

HERE is a health and beauty recipe offered by Cathleen Nesbitt, the Irish beauty appearing in the leading feminine role in "Justice," the John Galsworthy play at the Plymouth theatre.

In the first place, Miss Nesbitt, who will be remembered by Boston playgoers for her admirable work during the initial appearance of the famous Irish Players at the inauguration of the Plymouth Theatre, lays emphatic stress upon the needlessness of the use of cosmetics as a means of preserving the skin.

"I have discovered during my stay in America," she says, "that the women here are prone to emulate the examples set by European women in many things. For instance I know that pastes are frequently used, in many instances, without knowledge of the proper method of their use. Avoid the use of cosmetics as much as you possibly can. It is obviously artificial and there's nothing that so tends to give a gaudy appearance as does artificiality.

"Application of cold cream is very helpful, but the most important rule for keeping one's health and beauty is the adherence to a daily program, and that a simple one. As for myself, I never allow a single day to go by without devoting a certain amount of time to relaxation, and by this I mean absolute rest, reading, walking and some mild form of exercise other than walking. For some time I have chosen deep breathing; I find it stimulates my entire person.

"I have never been able to accomplish anything without freedom of the mind. For that reason I would advise the elimination of worry which with some people seems to become a habit. Women should realize that worry is their deadliest enemy. It causes more unnecessary wrinkles and gray hair in comparatively young women than may be discerned in non-worrying women of a ripe age."

Taste as to Eating

The Things That Some Humans Seem to Enjoy as Food

IN these times of the high cost of meats, did you ever think of the edibles of the "other half"?

Is there anything more repulsive in eating a snail than the winkle? The clean, white flesh of the frog is also quite as inviting as that of many birds eaten whose diet is similar.

Many stranger things than frogs and snails are eaten by the inhabitants of distant lands. The blacks of Central Africa esteem as dainties a species of fat, white grub found beneath the bark of trees, and their Kaffir cousin looks upon rats as a valuable article of diet. In most African villages parish dogs are cooked and eaten.

From China come a long list of dainties that would be repugnant to the Western fancy and palate. Birds'-nest soup is well known, and so is trepang, the sea-slug, in whose capture many Chinese fishermen earn their living. In the streets of Canton there may be seen exposed for sale to such as care to buy, rats, dogs, crows, piles of the larvae of bees and moths, and many other edibles of whose origin the Western traveler shudders to think.

Many curious dishes are beloved of the natives of the various republics of South America. The Indians of the Amazon bake and eat snake. Bearmeat is enjoyed by those inhabiting the Andes uplands, and has been pronounced excellent by hunters.

In the Chilian markets there may be seen heaps of small, immature octopi, fated to be made into soup, and also bundles of seaweed, which is stewed and served as a vegetable, and highly esteemed for its valuable tonic and blood-cleansing properties.

Like the French, the Chilians eat the legs of large frogs, which may be caught or reared. Prickly sea-urchins, called by the natives "erizos," are eaten raw, as are also large mussels, called "choros."

There are no rabbits indigenous to Chili, but the place of that useful little animal is taken by the common pussy-cat, who is frequently made into "cazuela," a native dish, which is something of a soup and a stew.

Many a traveller, lunching at some wayside inn of Chili, on inquiring the ingredients of the appetizing dish he has just consumed has been told to his horror:

"Gato piquante, senor" (savory cat)!

The plains of Argentina are sometimes visited by hordes of locusts, which consume every living green thing in their path. They are in turn consumed by the inhabitants, without, however, making much difference to the huge swarms.

But the Argentines are not the only eaters of insects. A certain large spider is fried and eaten by Austrians, and, in pre-war days at least, might have been ordered in most restaurants in Vienna.

When you pour our tea from its air-tight canister, the delicate leaves are as fresh and perfect and exquisite in flavor as when newly gathered in the tea garden. Was not the invention of that canister an inspiration? We think so, and so will you after you have tried ROUND ONE—At the sound of the dish pan, both fighters made for the center of the ring. Young Moran was there first, as Young Willard got his trousers caught on a nail and had to be untangled. They shook hands. Young Willard accidentally stepped on Young Moran's toe. Young Moran made a wild swing for Young Willard's nose, missed and fell through the ropes. Young Willard laughed as Young Moran was helped back into ring. Both fighters chased each other around ring till sound of dish pan. Anybody's round.

ROUND TWO—At sound of dish pan, Young Moran slammed one of his seconds for pouring a bottle of water into his trouser pocket. Young Willard stood in center of ring and kidded Young Moran. Young Moran after being separated from his second and pushed into ring in direction of Young Willard. He slipped and fell to floor bringing Young Willard with him. Young Willard got to his feet first. Young Moran followed soon after and made a wild rush at Young Willard. Young Willard held out his right hand Young Moran rushed into it taking it on left eye. Young Willard laughed. Some one at ringside blew sneeze powder in ring. Everybody sneezed. Time taken out. Everybody's round.

ROUND THREE—Both made a wild dash at each other. Someone at ringside yelled at Young Moran, he turned and Young Willard rapped him on the bean. Young Moran started to cry and chased Young Willard around the ring until both were out of breath. Young Willard stopped still and Young Moran kicked him on the shin. Van, the referee stopped the fight and gave it to Young Willard on a foul. Stocks Closed Weak in New York, with Prices Irregular in Boston---Zincs and Coppers Lower---Markets Opened Dull---Active on Decline

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in New York at the end and irregular in Boston. What activity there was in the big market came on the decline. Losses ranged from fractions to several points. Declines at the end included Anaconda ½, Chino ¼, Inspiration ½, Tennessee Copper ½, Utah Copper ¼, American Zinc ½, Butte & Superior 1, Beet Sugar 1, American Can ½, American Smelting ¼, Baldwin ⅞, Colorado Fuel ⅞, Crucible Steel 1⅝, Marine preferred certificates 1⅜, Great Northern Ore ⅝, Lackawanna Steel ¼, Maxwell ⅝, Mexican Petroleum 1⅜, National Lead ⅜, Republic Steel ½, Studebaker 2¼, U. S. Steel ⅝, Industrial Alcohol 1⅝, Westinghouse ½, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛, Canadian Pacific ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Erie ¼, Lehigh Valley ⅝, N. Y. Central 1, Reading 1, Southern Pacific ⅝, St. Paul ⅝ and Rock Island ⅛.

Among gains were General Motors 23, Distillers ¼ and Northern Pacific ¼.

Among unchanged issues were Car & Foundry, American Locomotive, American Sugar, California Petroleum, Goodrich, Kennecott, Texas Co., Union Pacific and Atchison.

Declines in Boston included Ahmeek 1, Mohawk ½, Tamarack ¼, Wolverine 1, U. S. Smelting ⅞, Butte & Superior ⅞, New Idria 1¼, United Fruit ½, Atlantic Gulf common ¾, preferred ½, and American Woolen preferred ½.

Among gains were American Zinc ¼, Allouez ½, Calumet & Arizona ¼, Copper Range ½, North Butte ½, United Shoe ½, and Boston Elevated ⅝.

IRREGULAR AND DULL.

Stocks were irregular in New York at the opening, with trading quiet and with the market narrow and price changes averaging small. As a class coppers were most active and they were mixed as to trend. Crucible Steel was the most extensively dealt-in war industrial and it was weak. American Zinc was prominent and after advancing lost the gain and sold below yesterday's final price. The market had the same aspects as it had yesterday. It lacked interesting features, was hesitant, dull and almost wholly made by the professional element. Big interests and the public were lookers on. Nervousness existed, although not acutely manifested.

Business Men of Boston: Help Save the Bunker Hill Boys' Club

You Cannot Afford to See This Beneficent Organization Disbanded; It Is Doing Too Fine a Work in Building Up a Splendid Citizenship—And When This Club Is Saved Let Us Start One Like It in Every Section of the City

HAVE the citizens of Boston sense enough to save the Bunker Hill Boys' Club, with its thousand boy members who need their help, and the development of whose good citizenship is so much needed by the city of Boston?

Three hundred business men of the city, occupied men, with little time to spare, understand the importance of saving the Bunker Hill Boys' Club. They have undertaken to act as solicitors to raise the necessary one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, which will give the boys a new club home in place of the old building, which is now condemned by the building commissioner as unsafe.

Can it be said that the third largest community in the United States, with the greatest per capita wealth in the world, turned a deaf ear to the appeal of these thousand boys in Charlestown and allowed a club which furnished these thousand boys a pleasant home and useful recreation, where they had a gymnasium, baths, playgrounds; where they could make baskets and other useful things; where they could learn the wireless system of telegraphy and receive messages by it; where they could be induced to come off the streets with their unhealthy barroom atmosphere—can it be said that we allow such a club, with so much usefulness to the future citizenship of Boston, to be disorganized and disbanded?

The boys have already raised one-half the needed sum. They have a few more days in which to raise the balance. If a solicitor comes to you, Mr. Reader, in the next few days in behalf of these boys, give him at least the price of a few tickets to the theatre, and that money will give you pleasure long after the plays have been forgotten.

Boston cannot afford to see this beneficent club disbanded. We ought to have more clubs like it in every section of the city. There is enough dynamic force in those thousand boys to revolutionize the country. Wendell Phillips once said that his audience of twelve men was enough to start a revolution, and he knew, for he was one of the few who started the great revolution that ended slavery.

Every man who can spare a dollar and considers himself public-spirited ought to contribute to the salvation of this boys' club. The Chamber of Commerce and the Real Estate Exchange could do nothing better in the interest of Boston than to aid in the raising of the money.

Massachusetts Should Be First for Federalization of the Militia

THE AMERICAN hopes this year that the Legislature will give our Massachusetts militiamen the opportunity to say whether or not they are willing to offer themselves to the national government as part of the national defence.

The most thoughtful military men and civilians who have given the question of national preparedness most intelligent attention are strongly in favor of what is called the federalization of our militia. This means the placing in the control of the national government the military forces of the States with the consequent development of uniformity and homogeneity in the military forces of the nation.

Massachusetts ought to take the lead in this great movement in behalf of national preparedness. Massachusetts was the first to organize the national defence in the Revolutionary War. Our State troops were the first to arrive in defence of Washington in the Civil War. So we ought to be the first to set an example of altruism and patriotism in the subordination of our local interest to the national welfare.

It is too plain for argument that a military force under the national government, with the resources of the national government, with the co-ordination and uniformity which centralization in the national government would produce, must give us an incomparably more efficient military force than forty-eight independent, petty bands of soldiers, having different weapons, different uniforms, when they have any; different standards of discipline and different standards of physical qualification.

Once-Overs

When looking for faults in any person we never spare time nor trouble, but when we are looking for good we often glance at the surface, and if we do not see what we seek we make no further effort.

Why not reverse the action?

The majority of people have something good about them. Would it not be better to dig around a little harder to find out the good qualities?

And why talk so much about the frailties of those with whom we come in contact? Would it not be more manly to look until we find the good?

Panama Canal and the Shape of the Earth

Answer to a Correspondent Who Thinks That the Engineers Have Proved That the Earth Is Flat—How We Know That It Is Round

By Garrett P. Serviss

"WISE men ought to begin right and follow science in order to know the facts. Engineers work to or from straight-level datum lines in their survey and works for railroads, canals, sewers, waterworks, etc. See their working drawings and works for the Panama Canal. They dug and built that canal, fifty miles long, to and from a straight-level datum line. Suez Canal, 100 miles long, was dug to a straight-level datum line. Thus science in practical works proves that the surface of the earth, taken as a whole, is flat and stands fast." A. F. H.

YES, surely, wise men ought to begin right and follow science in order to know the facts! And they ought not to twist themselves up in any of those curiously persistent paradoxes with which Professor de Morgan used to make merry. Here is the "flat earth" fallacy again. The earth flatteners seem to be unconquerable. Apparently they abhor the thought of people at the Antipodes standing with feet toward us, and regard it as a duty to combat to the death the suggestion of so improper an attitude. They not only assert that the earth is flat, but also deny that it rotates. The kind of "proofs" that they offer is illustrated by the letter above.

Now, let us look at some facts. The Panama Canal is not a sea-level canal, except over the terminal portions of its course. It is lifted up by means of locks over the backbone of the Isthmus, which is only partially sawed through. For a considerable part of its way it runs through a lake.

There is no meaning in the letter unless the writer of it supposes that the "straight-level datum line" is a tangent to the earth's surface, determined by a level at one end of the canal and extended straight through space to the other end, and that the canal was built on that line. If that were so, one end of the canal would be more than 1,600 feet farther from the earth's centre than the other end. In other words, it would run up into the air. If the tangents were drawn from each end, then the centre would be over 400 feet up. What the engineers really did in their levelling operations was to keep the plumb-line, or the direction of gravity, perpendicular to the surface of the water at every point in the canal's course. Thus they followed the curvature of the earth. Instead, then, of showing that the earth is flat, the Panama Canal furnishes a proof of its rotundity.

The same is true of the Suez Canal, which is a sea-level canal. It follows the curvature of the earth, and the real purpose of the levelling operations was to see that it did follow that curvature, for otherwise the water would not stay in it. Being about ninety miles long, the Suez Canal, if it had followed a tangent formed by continuing the level from one end would have been more than a mile up in the air at the opposite end.

The earth rounds off about eight inches in a mile, and the drop of the surface below a tangent from the starting point increases as the square of the distance. Thus we have 90x90x8—64,800 inches, or 5,400 feet. These are the geometrical data. In all practical sighting allowances have to be made for the effects of atmospheric refraction.

The proofs of the rotundity of the earth are many and various. One of the most striking was pointed out by Galileo centuries ago. It is the fact, which anybody can observe, that the shadow of the earth cast on the moon during a lunar eclipse has a circular outline. A very strong proof from analogy is the observed fact that all the other members of the solar system—sun, planets, moons—are globular in shape.

We can travel round the earth and come back again to the starting point without ever changing our direction. If an observer at any point on the earth sees a star in his zenith, another observer a thousand miles away will see that star about 15 degrees from his zenith. Now we know that a change of a thousand miles in the position of the observer would produce no perceptible change in a star's place, because all the stars are so immensely distant that even a change of 186,000,000 miles in the observer's position only suffices to cause a shifting of a fraction of a second of arc in the place of a few of the nearer stars.

But the zenith observations are easily and simply explained when we consider that they are made from the surface of a globe. The location of each observer's zenith is determined by a straight line from the centre of the earth passing through him and extended to the sky. Everybody who goes to sea knows that vessels sink below the horizon as they recede in the distance. They could not do that on a flat earth.

Even the law of gravitation proves that the earth must be round. Under the influence of their attraction upon one another the particles forming a great body like the earth must gather themselves into a globular shape, because they all tend toward the centre of their common mass, and a globe is the form in which the effects of their mutual attractions are balanced.

We see this principle at work when molten lead falling from a shot tower assumes the form of a shower of little spheres. The same is seen in the formation of raindrops. If a great army of men could be thrown out into space so far away that the attraction of the individuals upon one another exceeded any other to which they were subjected, they would drift together in a globular mass like a cluster of bees!

The proofs of the earth's rotation and of its revolution around the sun are equally numerous and convincing, but they cannot be touched upon now.

We Poets

By William F. Kirk

ABOUT three hundred years ago
A long-haired youth with dreamy eyes,
Wearing his necktie in a bow,
Gazed wildly at the Summer skies.
His slim hand o'er the paper flew,
While writing to his dam-o-zel;
Perhaps she read the poem through—
You cannot always sometimes tell.

From where I pound the keys today,
No Summer cloudlets can be seen;
My eyes are not a dreamy gray—
On pay-day they are very keen.
I never write in measure free,
Of love and bliss and stars of hope;
Lest some fair maid might marry me,
And grab my weekly en-vel-ope!

WILL You Wear a Fashionable Hat, Madam, or Do You Want the Police Called Out?

Nonsense? SAY Not So, Dear Heart, but Read Here the Story of What Happened to a Noblewoman in Fashion's Capital. Please Remind Your Brothers, by the Way, That Tonight's the Night and That the BEST Willard-Moran Stories Will Appear in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Gentle Spring having, at last, arrived—the young lady's press agent reports that the usual supply of ethereal mildness has been delayed in Jersey by the freight congestion, but will be along now any day—we take unalloyed pleasure in calling attention to the great Spring Fashion Number of the Sunday AMERICAN.

The press and publicity agent of gentle Miss Spring is the unexceptional Dame Fashion, who, usually, arrives in New England two weeks before Spring "unlocks the flowers to paint the laughing soil."

The week which opens tomorrow, then, is "Fashion Week" in New England, marked ceremoniously, celebrated with dignity, observed with pictured and photographed beauty, in a great ten-page section of New England's greatest Sunday newspaper.

There ARE those who dislike Dame Fashion, who sneer at her, who utter derisive words about her.

Was Charles W. Brewster a journalist? Nearly one hundred years ago Mr. Brewster delivered a lecture before the Lyceum at Portsmouth on the "Changes of Fashion."

Mr. Brewster suggested an Association to fix upon a General Standard of Dress in the United States.

He proposed a "Republic of the World, purified in one Revolution from Foreign Political Despotism; and in another, from servility to Foreign Fashions!"

What was DONE about establishing the Brewster Association, to fix upon a General Standard of Dress in the United States, we have been unable to find out. In Portsmouth, last Summer, none could tell us whether Local No. 1 was still in existence. The landlord of the Kearsarge Hotel, a jovial chap indeed, and famous for miles around as an antiquarian of note, thought Mr. Brewster killed the Association off a-borning when he tactlessly told the members of the Lyceum what happened to Lady Davy, once upon a time, in the city of Paris.

Mr. Newton went to the hotel library and, returning in a few moments with a copy of the Lecture, printed by the Portsmouth Journal Press in the year 1837, read the story as follows:

> The necessity of conforming to the style of the times and avoiding singularity in dress, is strikingly illustrated in the Life of Sir Humphrey Davy.
> In 1813 Sir Humphrey Davy was permitted by Napoleon to visit Paris.
> At that time, it will be recollected, every movement of citizens was carefully watched and every assemblage of people in public places was speedily dispersed by military power, to prevent riots and revolutionary proceedings.
> While the distinguished philosopher was attending the meeting of the Institute, Lady Davy, attended by her maid, walked in the public garden.
> She wore a very small hat, of a simple cockel-shelled form, such as was fashionable in London at the time, while the Parisian ladies wore bonnets of most voluminous dimensions.
> On seeing the diminutive bonnet of Lady Davy, the Parisians felt little less surprise than did the inhabitants of Brobdignag on beholding the hat of Gulliver; and a crowd of persons soon assembled around the unknown exotic; in consequence of which one of the Inspectors of the Garden immediately presented himself and informed her ladyship that no cause for assemblage could be suffered, and therefore requested her to retire.
> She then requested to be conducted to her carriage; an officer immediately offered his arm; but the crowd had by this time so greatly increased that it became necessary to send for a corporal's guard, and the party quitted the garden surrounded by fixed bayonets.

It was Brother Brewster's idea—he MUST have been an editor—that the members of the National Association would make one bonnet do for three years. Gentlemen's hats, he was sure, would be fashionable until they were worn out; and the wedding coat, "which is saved for holiday occasions, might descend from father to son, a fashionable garment."

It sounded well enough, that lecture did, no doubt, but the fashionable men and women of steady-going Portsmouth, having been warned by the Davy story, turned cold shoulders to "this notion of Brewster's" and have been happy and well dressed ever since.

The men and women of today can be stylishly or fashionably dressed at extremely moderate cost. The Spring Fashion Number of the Sunday AMERICAN, with a ten-page section given over exclusively to drawings, descriptions and photographs of the latest designs of Lady Duff Gordon, Redfern, Bulloz, Martial et Armond, Doeuillet, Beer, Premet, Jenny and others, will appeal irresistibly to every girl in New England, to every big girl and every little girl, every young girl and—there are no old girls any more—every younger girl.

While the ladies are passing out quietly, we desire to say just one word to our friends of the sterner sex, those citizens who vote.

The duel between Mr. Willard and Mr. Moran will be fought tonight in New York. It will be reported in detail in the Sunday AMERICAN by Mr. John L. Sullivan, Mr. James J. Corbett, Mr. Jess Willard, Mr. W. S. Farnsworth and Mr. Ed. Curley.

The City Edition of the Sunday AMERICAN will be at a premium tomorrow wherever men desire the BEST stories of the Willard-Moran contest. We hazard the prophecy that this edition of the Sunday AMERICAN will have disappeared from the news stands of New England long before noon. Speak today, therefore, to your regular news dealer. Ask him to be sure to save YOUR copy of the Sunday AMERICAN.

There are still gentle souls who believe that boxing gloves have made sparring as harmless a contest as a fencing match with buttoned foils.

Boxing IS the fairest and the LEAST dangerous of all forms of the duel, but gentlemen in the know will admit that it is a more trying and dangerous form of contest than the old-fashioned knuckle-fight, introduced in 1719 by Jim Figg of Thame in Oxfordshire, and improved upon from time to time thereafter by Tom Cribb, Bendigo, the Tipton Slasher, Tom Sayers, Jem Mace and John Camel Heenan, Benecia Boy.

Read John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, Jess Willard, W. S. Farnsworth and Ed. Curley in the Sunday AMERICAN.

And—everybody—do dress up!
